You Have Inflation But Don't Weep Regulated Flying Amazing Russian Work

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A law will presently become the "law of the land" compelling the nation to buy one billion, four hundred million ounces of silver. It is announced that the President will issue fifteen hundred million dollars of paper money to buy the silver. Conservative old fogyism yells "inflation," although it is not inflation, since the money will have silver back of it.

It will have more back of it than the government's bond on which the nation pays interest. Back of those bonds there is nothing but a paper mill, and the government's name. There are no longer any gold bonds; you can't get any gold.

Back of the silver money issued to buy silver there will at least be silver, and you can always buy something with that, in China, Mexico, India, elsewhere as well as here at home.

Conservative old fogyism may as well realize that we have left the gold basis, and that a government bond is worth exactly as much as a piece of green paper with the government name on it, no more, no less. All you will get for any U. S. government bond is pieces of green paper, when you come to sell it.

Why the government lacks the brains to issue only green paper and save one hundred per cent in interest is hard to understand. Perhaps the President means to do the thing slowly, that old fogyism may merely faint, not die of apoplexy.

In any case remember that you have inflation NOW, as we pump out interest bearing bonds by the billions. And we are going to have MORE inflation because we plan to give the three great guarantees to the people, guarantee of homes, guarantee of jobs, guarantee job insurance. You cannot do that with only "love and kisses," you must do it with money. And be it foolish bonds, bearing interest, or be it nice American greenbacks with Uncle Sam's name on it, and no interest, the money will have to be issued.

For your comfort remember that this nation, which has actually lost, according to careful statistics, more than ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND MILLION OF DOLLARS since the depression began, can well afford another hundred thousand millions to get out of the depression, if that amount is necessary.

This isn't any LITTLE country, or any POOR country.

One hundred thousand millions to the United States is less than ten millions would be to John D. Rockefeller, and you know or you can imagine how much that would be to him.

Following the loss of one passenger plane in Catskill mountains, you read about the destruction of another United States passenger plane in the Argentine, five killed, five injured.

It would be unfair to criticize flying methods without knowing every detail of each disaster, but the management of American Flying Lines, and the United States government as well, should be interested in regulations that France has established for flying over the Desert of Sahara.

The French minister of colonies issues regulations stipulating definite routes, with compulsory use of sending and receiving wireless outfits and definite regulations as to their use.

Something should be done to discourage the habit of running airplanes into the mountains on the Pacific and the Atlantic coast. Higher flying, with reliable altometers, if such things exist, and landing with radio guiding beams would seem essential.

The Russian Communist worm turns with a loud report and prints an advertisement that will startle, bewilder and obfuscate, to borrow a word from Mr. Gene Tunney's vocabulary, one already bewildered "best financial mind."

Not content with advertising Russian gold bonds that pay 7 per cent, redeemable, principal and interest, "upon a fixed quantity of gold," and payable in any kind of money you like, Russia, in an advertisement printed in America, assures those buying Russian bonds that they "are thus protected against loss resulting from possible further reduction in the gold content of the dollar."

As it happens, there isn't ANY gold content to our dollar. It is just a dollar, printed on a good

ARREST NEAR IN KILLING OF 2, SAY POLICE

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Lowell, June 13—As officials closed in today on the man they believe to be the Caouette farm murderer, a pond near the murder scene was being drained in a search for the death gun.

Firemen were pumping the water out in the belief the killer hurled his weapon in the pond as he fled toward Lowell. Officials believe the weapon will prove to be the one stolen from the home of Patrolman John A. Whalen five weeks ago.

Other movements of police and state detectives were cloaked in secrecy as they forged a chain of evidence about a definite suspect.

Questioning of suspects by investigators has eliminated the "tramp" angle but police indicated that the grilling had given them information which they believe has put them on the murderer's trail.

Investigators refused to disclose the source of their information or where it would lead them but figures in the investigation were

WEST END MAN SHOT IN JAW

Guiseppi Gaudino, 32, of 18 Auburn street, West End, was in a serious condition in City Hospital today after a mysterious shooting in Hanover street, North End.

He refused to talk about the affray, and police were able to learn little more than that he lived with a married brother, Guittino.

Two men and a girl, said to have witnessed the shooting, were questioned by police.

Gaudino's jaws were broken.

Police said they believed the shooting was a burst of gang warfare.

SIX FACE DOLE FRAUD ARREST

Warrants charging six persons with 42 counts of larceny from the public welfare department were issued today by Judge Michael J. Murray in municipal court.

The warrants charge two of the presons obtained welfare money through use of spurious stamps. The remaining four are charged with accepting aid while employed.

In Suffolk Superior Court Joseph Migoiofie of East Boston paid $50 fine and made restitution of $38 after he had pleaded guilty to obtaining money from the welfare department by using a card marked with a fraudulent stamp.

COUNCIL PASSES CITY BUDGET

The $40,000,000 city and county budget for the remainder of 1934 was passed today by the city council with one amendment by which the item in reference to county printing is tabled. Councillors voted 18 to 4 in favor of passage.

Councillor Joseph McGraph, Dorchester, voted favorably on the measure but pointed out that he did so only to place responsibility for the budget up to the mayor. He said passage of the budget would be an indictment against Mayor Mansfield.

Roosevelt-Ely Break Looms in Farley Talk

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Worcester, June 13—Startling reports of an impending break between the Roosevelt administration and Governor Ely were flying thick and fast as delegates gathered here today for the Democratic preliminaries to the pre-primary convention tomorrow in Municipal Auditorium.

These reports are based on what is claimed to be authentic information that Postmaster General James A. Farley, keynoter of the big dinner tonight at the Hotel Bancroft, will "go after" the snipers of the Washington policies.

Governor Ely, because of his thrusts in recent national broadcasts at the "Brain Trust" and the various alphabet relief administrations, it is claimed, has aroused the administration and Farely will take up the challenge.

It is known that forces close to Governor Ely are working fever-

QUINTUPLET MOTHER HAS RELAPSE

Her Condition Serious, Says Doctor, Sending Her to Bed

By International News Service

Callander, Ont., June 13—Mrs. Elzire Dionne, 25-year-old mother of the famed 16-day-old quintuplet daughters, suffered a serious relapse today when she developed a fever and fainting spells.

At 9 a. m. Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, believing his wife to be in a critical condition, rushed to the home of Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the attending physician.

Dr. Dafoe hurried to the Dionne home, and following an examination of the mother said:

"Mrs. Dionne's condition is serious, but I would not say that it is critical."

The condition of the babies was reported as being satisfactory and all of the little people showed substantial increases in weight.

Dr. Dafoe said earlier in the day that the relapse from which Mrs. Dionne was then suffering was caused by her failure to remain abed except for short periods when he has permitted her to look in on her babies.

Yvonne	41	1
Annette	38	½
Cecile	33½	—½

Marie	28¾	¾

Sac City, Ia., June 13 (AP)—Squalling lustily between periods of feeding and sleeping, the four tiny Wycoff quadruplets showed "plenty of pep" today. Dr. G. H. Swearingen insisted all was well.

Tiny Lorraine Delaine, smallest of the quartet, weighed but 2¼ pounds yesterday, four ounces less than at birth. The others were also lighter, the loss ranging up to eight ounces for Lester Dean, the solitary male, and a similar loss for Lavonne Danene. Laverne Darlene lost four ounces.

Primo Real Sheik, Says Miss Parsons

In his own way, Primo Carnera is as much of a lad with the ladies as the highly-touted Max Baer, says Louella Parsons after interviewing the great Italian. He is very romantic, she says, and reveals there is one girl whom Primo is "that way" about. The picture also proves Primo is not as girl shy as it is generally supposed.

The line of girl admirers forms on the right wherever Max Baer appears—at least, that's what Max thinks, Louella Parsons says. And the picture seems to prove that the girls do like the Adonis from the West. But after all, says Miss Parsons, the outcome of the fight will tell who really is the favorite with the fair sex. New York, June 13—The regal Stats building, where the commissioners from New York, Illinois and California held their pow-wow today, was the nearest thing to a Hollywood theater in the throes of a premiere I have seen since I came to New York. Not that the commissioners were the attraction. Goodness, no! All of them stayed in the background, while Max Baer and Primo Carnera were handing out autographs to the assembled multitude.

I tagged along at the heels of my favorite commissioner, Dr. Harry W. Martin, and was lucky enough to ride up in the elevator with Carnera, the Italian giant. Carnera looked in the "pink." He had a good color, his eyes were bright, and he had a smile for the stenographers who surrounded him the moment he stepped out of the elevator.

Primo wasn't allowed to do much talking. His head worriers keep a watchful eye on him just so he won't give them the slip—and slip is what I mean. There is a classic

Navy Secretary Says Chemist Had U. S. Secret Papers

By Associated Press

Washington, June 13—Secretary Swanson said today at a press conference that William Bader of the Semet-Solvay Company, Buffalo, killed in an airplane crash Saturday night on Mineup Mountain, N. Y., was carrying a formula for ammonium picrape, used in the manufacture of gunpowder.

Swanson said there was nothing confidential about the formula and that Bader's firm, a subsidiary of the duPont company, was merely one of the 10 bidders for a navy contract.

Coroner Victor G. Bourke said, at Liberty, N. Y., he was positive there was an explosion, and added he expected new information on whether it occurred before the sky liner crashed into the rugged mountain side, killing its seven occupants.

He said new evidence might lead to postponement of the inquest.

District Attorney William Deckleman of Jeffersonville conferred with Dr. Bourke and state police officers in the backroom of a restaurant until an early hour this morning. There was no indication of the trend of their discussion.

Reports that "secret" naval documents were found in the luggage of William B. Bader, a Buffalo chemist, one of the dead, were denied in Washington. Naval officers said any papers in Bader's possession were not "confidential." They explained Bader's employer, the Semet-Solvay Co., was an unsuccessful bidder several months ago for a navy order.

Bader's luggage contained the chemicals under investigation.

DARROW AIDE SEES FACISM AS HE QUITS NRA BOARD

GENERAL JOHNSON ATTACKED FOR REBUKING CRITICS

Thomson Calls Administrator's Defense "Smoke Screen"; Wage Scales By New Deal Denounced

By Associated Press

Washington, June 13—Saying that the development of NRA "day by day reveals more clearly a marked trend toward Fascism in the United States," W. O. Thompson resigned today as a member of the Darrow NRA review board.

In a statement containing his resignation, delivered at the White House, he asserted that "the trend of the National Recovery Administration has been and continues to be toward the encouragement and development of monopoly capitalism in the United States."

"The only solution," the former law partner of Clarence Darrow said, "involves a change in class relationships. Only a government by the workers and farmers can plan production, produce goods for use and not for profit, eliminate poverty, and raise the standard of living of the entire population."

PREPARED REPORT

Thompson said he alone was responsible for the preparation and conclusions of the recent supplemental report of the board which recommended socialization of industry.

"The publication of our report" he added, "was the occasion for an unjustified attack by General Johnson, the Labor Advisory Board, and other agents and supporters of monopoly capital.

"The purpose of their attack was obviously to divert public attention from the clear content of our findings which showed the growing encouragement of monopolistic combinations and practices by the National Recovery administration.

"Without my knowledge and without my signature, the recovery review board has recently (June 3, 1934) issued a statement hailing the newly-announced NRA price-fixing policy.

"The announcement of a 'new' price-fixing policy is merely a device to calm an aroused public realization of the extent of monopolistic practices.

"That it does not represent any change but rather the continuation of the old policy is evidenced by the statement that the code authorities of approved codes will 'amend' the price-fixing provisions. In other words, as the supplementary report stated, 'monopolistic combinations are expected to enforce against themselves a law to prevent monopoly.'"

Thompson said NRA codes already had resulted in "marked increase in prices" for the "broad consuming masses of population."

"Also," he added, "as a result of high prices and decreased purchasing power, the textile industry has been forced to resort to a 25 per cent curtailment of production.

CITES WAGE REDUCTION

"The actual result of the NRA codes has been merely a continuation of the stagger system under which more workers are attached to the payroll but all are receiving wholly inadequate earnings.

"The minimum wages established under the codes have tended to become the maximum, thus dragging down the general average of all wages. Even these minimum wages have given no relief to Negroes or many other categories of lower-paid workers.

Scare of Rabies Quelled in Quincy

The rabies scare, which has gripped Hough's Neck, Quincy, since the cat of Mrs. Adrian Blowers, of Ratchford circle, became wild and bit a man four weeks ago, was dispelled today by a report from Harvard Medical School.

Doctors there examined the head of the animal, which was shot after biting the man, and said today that intestinal disorder and not rabies had affected the cat.

Traffic Officer Injured by Truck

Patrolman Richard O'Halloran, on traffic duty at Arlington and Stuart streets, in the Back Bay, suffered injuries to his legs and stomach today when a truck, driven by Joseph B. Daly, of Highland avenue, Somerville, struck his traffic box.

story that the giant Italian, on the very night before his bout with Thomas Loughran, ran away, and went buggy riding with two ladies.

The "little" boy from sunny Italy, it appears, likes his girl friends in Paris. He is seldom seen with one cutie, but according to this reporter's observations he does his prancing with a couple of queens—usually blondes.

While the news hounds have been hounding Maxie Baer and pitying Jack Dempsey for his hard job in keeping him under lock and key, Primo's amours have entirely escaped the vigilant committee of scribblers.

In his own way, Primo is as much of a lad with the ladies as is the Livermore butcher boy. While the Italian was making a picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, he always had several pairs of girls waiting for him on the sidelines. Not a word was said about Primo's lady friends, but every time Max went out stepping with a Hollywood babe, he was credited with one more feminine scalp to his already amply decorated belt.

Really,—it's a laugh. While Max has been loudly proclaimed as the pugilistic Gay Lothario and Primo is pictured as a rather surly, hard-working fighter for whom ladies hold no interest, Primo has been putting over a fast one.

His keepers have just as much trouble to be sure he doesn't try to follow the powder puff and vanity case path as do Max's worried retinue. Max has been said about he amours of Maxie, the curly-haired, fast-talking lady's man, than about the huge, awkward Italian. But take it from me, Max, for all his show-off tactics and his braggadocio about his way with the girls and his amazing conceit, ain't anymore of a Don Juan than his ring rival.

Let's consider the two boys from the woman's angle. On one side we have the Adonis from the West. The handsome lad who believes that everywhere he appears he the line of feminine admirers forms to the right. Here we have a boy who went to Hollywood, became a movie actor and went more Hollywood than Hollywood's oldest living citizen.

On the other hand, we have the heavyweight champion of the world —with feet so big that the average man can put two feet in one of Primo's huge shoes. In place of Max's white, glistening, even teeth, Primo's teeth are slightly irregular.

Primo's physical attributes are much less appealing to the average feminine eye, who prefer a tailor's model and a darling woozy. Yet, I must say, Primo, with his monogrammed tie, his light summer clothes, was dressed to the teeth today.

FIGHT WILL TELL

In about 48 hours he shall know whether Max, who is in so much better shape than outsiders believe, will take the bow before the cheering multitudes at Madison Square bowl, or whether Primo Carnera will keep the crown in his possession.

It won't be a question with the girls then which one is the favorite. Women always pick winners and if Max Baer wins the title he'll have all gals on his side. If Primo keeps his title intact, he'll have a head start on feminine interest. Maybe that's one reason that Primo is so eager to keep the championship. He is very romantic and where do you think he went on his night off?

I won't tell, because I promised, but Primo has a girl—singular this time.

New York, June 13 (INS)—Romance with a distinctly materialistic tinge reared its head over the ropes at Madison Square Garden Bowl today as two young ladies who believe they have financial claims against Primo Carnera and Max Baer put their lawyers to work.

Emella Tersini, pretty London waitress whom Primo once described as a "little star" and who later played the stellar role in a breach of promise action against the giant Italian, succeeded in tying up Carnera's purse in an effort to obtain the $14,666 balm awarded her by a London court.

Meanwhile, Shirley Labelle, jobless chorus girl who is suing Baer for $50,000 damages on assault charges, waited around while the Supreme Court prepared to rule on Max's motion for a bill of particulars. Baer claims he needs this to map his defense.

Her Pay Attached

Nanette Guilford, newcomer in a musical comedy cast in New York, who must pay New York plastic surgeon $40 a week on a $1034 bill she owes him for "reducing" her from 158 to 140 pounds.

STAR MUST PAY FOR REDUCING

New York, June 13—Just one-tenth of the "I love you my prince" that Nanette Guilford warbles nightly in her first break as a star into the musical comedy line by way of "Caviar" will be applied each week to the $1034 she owes Dr. Jules Safian, who two years ago sliced 18 pounds from the prima donna's curves.

That a garnishee against the beautiful diva's $400 weekly salary has been obtained to satisfy the judgment the plastic surgeon was granted on April 9, was learned yesterday.

According to the doctor, Nanette was preparing for an engagement with the Opera Comique, when she came to his office weighing 158, and asked to be reduced. He says he removed 18 pounds from her thighs, waist and hips, and obtained a 90-day promissory note for $1000.

Nanette never paid the note, the medico says.

BOXER HELD FOR BAD BILLS

The quick eye of Henrietta Madigan of Beacon Hill, saleswoman in a Scollay square newsstand, detected a counterfeit $5 bill given her by Joseph Cazielio of Havre and London streets, East Boston, known in boxing circles as "Battling Costello," it was testified before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney today by Secret Service Agent Alonzo Rice. Cazielio was held in $5000 bail for the grand jury.

Miss Madigan testified to waiting on Cazielio and telling him the $5 bill was bad, which he wished changed in paying for two packages of cigarettes.

Cazielio said he must have received the counterfeit $5 bill when he cashed a pay check by the Bethelem Steel Works.

Bare Backs In Peril of Ascot Ban, Too

London, June 13 (INS)—Bare backs may be banned at the Ascot race meet, as well as the royal courts, it was learned today. Society women were worried as to whether they might not have been too precipitate in ordering "sun back" frocks, for the Ascot meeting. Most of London's smart set, including those who, through presentation at court, hold the coveted badge admitting them to the royal enclosure, already have purchased gowns of this type.

Queen Mary has let it be known that some of the gowns at the recent royal courts were too revealing for conservative royal taste.

New London, Ct., June 13 (INS)—President Roosevelt has been invited to attend a banquet at Saybrook Point June 19 of New London County Democrats. The President has sent word that he will endeavor to attend. The following day he will receive an honorary LL. D. degree at Yale and on the 22d will witness the Yale-Harvard boat races.

U. S. WON'T LET ALL DEBTORS PAY GOODS

Part of Obligations Must Be in Money, Roosevelt Says

By International News Service.

Washington, June 13—President Roosevelt let it be known today the United States will be willing to accept only part payment in goods or services, rather than cash, of the ten billion dollars owed American taxpayers by Europe.

The President, at his weekly press conference, said Secretary of State Hull's note to Great Britain expressing the willingness of this government to consider payments in kind was not intended to convey the impression that the United States would accept payment of the entire debt in goods or services.

It would be impossible, the President added, to accept the total amount due each year from the debtor nations, approximately $300,000,000, in goods or services.

The President said this government had expressed its willingness to discuss with the debtors the question of payments in kind in order to avoid the obstacles raised by the debtors that it was impossible for them to pay in cash.

This government, Mr. Roosevelt said, was willing to listen to any suggestions the debtors might have to offer concerning part payments in kind—but only part payments.

RUNAWAY LYNN GIRL'S OWN STORY OF TAXI DANCER'S LIFE

DR. MACKEY'S BROTHER NEAR DEATH IN FIRE

Doctors at Carney hospital today were fighting for the life of Jeremiah Mackey, brother of Dr. Charles E. Mackey of the school committee, and one of three members of the doctor's family rescued from fire in the Mackey home at 520 Broadway, South Boston, this morning.

The others who were rescued are: Mrs. Catherine Mackey, the doctor's mother, and Miss Mary Joyce, a maid. The latter also was taken to the hospital. Mrs. Mackey collapsed, due to smoke inhalation. The other two suffered burns.

SISTER RISKS LIFE

Miss Genevieve Mackey, a sister of the doctor and teacher in East Boston high school, risked serious injury when she dashed into the burning house in an attempt to rescue Togo, the family's pet Spitz.

Although she could not find the dog he turned up half an hour later, unharmed.

Dr. Mackey, who was away on a professional call, returned home at the height of the blaze and was joined by Mrs. Mary Brandt of Marine road, South Boston, a married sister. Mrs. Brandt collapsed when she saw her brother Jeremiah, suffering from burns.

The blaze slightly damaged the building next door at 524 Broadway, which is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Forrest and their daughter Natalie, 3½. Mr. and Mrs. James Delaney and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Kendricks.

The fire was discovered by Jeremiah Mackey, who was asleep on the third floor. He aroused the other occupants and suffered the more serious burns by delaying in the building until all had been taken out. Fire officials estimated damage at $5000.

Miss Marie Diversi, 17, is back at her home in Ridgeway street, Lynn, happy with her dog, Rex, and her other friends, after her runaway flight to New York. There her beauty helped her mother trace her to a dancing place. A former escort told the mother "she has a face so beautiful no man could forget it." Augusta, Me., June 13 (AP)—The roll call today was answered by 18 members of the Grand Army of the Republic, as the Department of Maine opened its 67th annual encampment.

MARIE DIVERSI TELLS OF MANY 'DATE' OFFERS

Picture in American Led to Her Discovery in Gay New York

"There's nothing in Lynn for a girl who wants to get ahead in the world," said pretty Marie Diversi, 17, of Ridgeway street, who returned to her Lynn home today after working as a "taxi" dancer for 10 days in a New York dance hall.

Here is her own story of her life as a taxi-dancer:

"I went to New York because I wanted to get somewhere. There's nothing in Lynn for a girl who wants to get ahead in the world.

DATES WERE BARRED

"I know my parents wouldn't let me go, so I said nothing to them and ran away. I had the best home in the world and the best parents in the world but I was tired hanging around.

"I got a job as a hostess—that's what they called us—in the Rosebud dance hall in 42d street. There were about 25 other girls there although the sign outside said there were '150 beautiful girls.'

"It was a nice place. I was told that my job was to greet the patrons and dance with them. I was told that I was not to make dates with the patrons or I would lose my job.

"When a patron comes into the dance hall he buys eight tickets for a dollar. After he uses them he pays 10 cents a dance. I got five cents for every ticket I turned in when the place closed at 3 a. m.

MANY WERE PIKERS

"Some of the men would give you a handful of tickets and maybe only a few times a day. I were pikers. They would pay only 10 cents a dance and no more.

"Those who bought $3 worth of tickets were entitled to sit at a table with a hostess for half an hour. I had many invitations to eat and drink with the men, but I always ordered a sandwich and a glass of milk.

"I was an interesting job. There were young men and old men, Fat men and thin men. Many of them were all dressed up, but I could easily see that it was an outside polish. I could pick them out just as soon as they entered the place.

PAY WAS SMALL

"At first I used to send another girl to take my place if I didn't like the looks of the man I was supposed to dance with, but I learned that I couldn't make any money that way. My pay for the first three days I was there was $12. I worked from 8 p. m. until 3 o'clock in the morning.

"The majority of the younger men and many of the older ones would try to make dates with me. Their lines were all the same. 'Too bad a hood looking girl like you has to work here. Let me do something for you,' that was the same old line. I didn't pay any attention to them.

"The married men were funny. They loved a little attention and when I smiled at them they loved it. After a few drinks they would get very confidential and tell me their whole family history.

"One night a man came in wearing a handkerchief around his throat. It was my turn to greet the patron but I sent another girl in my place.

WOULD HAVE STAYED

"She came back in a few minutes with $3 worth of tickets and told me that the man was a minister who came in to see what a "taxi dance hall looked like.

"You can imagine my surprise when I looked up the other night and saw my mother there. I knew that I was all through. There was a policeman with my money and quit my taxi-dancing mother so I just collected my career.

"I would like to have stayed there but I knew my mother wouldn't let me. Now that I know how my parents feel about it, I guess I'll stay home. I am going to try to get a position as a hostess in some Boston restaurant or club. My parents don't mind my working in Boston but they want me to stay near home and I guess I will do as they wish."

Publication of Marie's photograph in the Boston Evening American led to her being found. A New Bedford youth in New York, visited the dance hall and recognized Marie from the photograph he had seen. He notified the New York police.

Police Trace Salem Kidnaping Threat

Salem police today were attempting to trace a kidnap threat telephoned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. O'Leary on Orne street, that city, last night.

A man's voice told Miss Rose A. Parisean, sister-in-law of Mrs. O'Leary, that the O'Learys' two-and-a-half-year-old son would be kidnaped unless he were paid $1000. Police were inclined to regard the call as a hoax, but the family insisted on taking precautions.

Plymouth, Eng., June 13 (INS)—Police today charged an infuriated mob that besieged a station demanding release of a Communist arrested following a Fascist meeting. The Communist, later released, paraded the streets at the head of the mob.

WIFE TO FIGHT ANY LOVE SUIT DODGE FILES

Charges Millionaire's Kidnaping Excuse Is "All Bunk"

New York, June 13—While street cleaners under urgent orders polished Fifth avenue as never before, in an effort to solve a $15,000 gem mystery in the tangled affairs of the Horace E. Dodges, little "One Punch Mickey" Devine, Broadway show girl who once popped the mighty Carners, became the central figure in the great kidnaping enigma which sent Dodge hurrying to England on Saturday.

It was Mrs. Muriel D. Dodge, estranged wife of the wealthy fugitive, who added the jewel mystery to the perplexities of the police. And it was Mrs. Dodge who lifted a corner of the veil that obscures the purported abduction plot—a gesture which revealed the small but highly decorative figure of Miss Devine.

It is Mrs. Dodge's ring, which she dropped from the window of her palatial suite, that started the street cleaners. And it was "One Punch Mickey" who played a more potent part than did kidnapers in speeding the flight of the Detroit multimillionaire, according to Mrs. Dodge.

"That kidnaping story is the bunk," she laughed at her apartment yesterday as she awaited news of the street cleaners' efforts. "Every one on Broadway knows the real answer to that riddle."

It was suggested that Mickey, whose name has often been coupled by the Broadway columnists with that of Dodge, had sailed on the Aquitania on the same day Dodge sailed on the Leviathan. Could Mickey be the answer that "every one on Broadway knows?"

Mrs. Dodge's silvery laugh rang out but she was reluctant to reveal a family secret in full.

AN UNUSUAL OFFER TO BOSTON HOME OWNERS

To every purchaser of an Oil-O-Matic we will give, absolutely free, two hundred gallons of No. 4 fuel oil — act now! This offer is being made for a limited time — subject to withdrawal without notice. Get in touch with us right away — or mail the coupon below.

AVERAGE HOME USES ONE GALLON FUEL PER OPERATING HOUR— WHY BURN UP TWO?

Why burn up two gallons of fuel oil per operating hour with an ordinary burner when you don't need it? Only Oil-O-Matic, with its positive metering control, can deliver as little as one-half gallon per operating hour. FURTHER, Oil-O-Matic burns No. 4 fuel oil — the low cost oil. Oil-O-Matic controls the basic patents for the metering device to accurately measure and maintain a constant amount of oil and volume of fire regardless of nature, weight of oil, or temperature.

A CHALLENGING GUARANTEE

The seller guarantees this equipment to be free from smoke, soot, odor, radio interference, or objectional noise. If, within a period of ninety days after September 1st, the equipment is not satisfactory, the seller agrees to remove same and refund all money paid in.

You can have your Oil-O-Matic installed complete — with 275-gallon oil tank — for $325.00. Pay as little as $3.25 a week.

ROOSEVELT-ELY SPLIT LOOMS IN FARLEY TALK TONIGHT

Maynard Expected To Boom Burns as One Who Would Win Washington's Favor; Third Term Talked

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

lishly to ward off the threat which would revive the Smith-Roosevelt split of 1932. Efforts to procure an advance copy of the Farley speech for tonight have been unsuccessful.

Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the Democratic State Committee will represent the administration, if is learned, in seeking to nominate a gubernatorial candidate acceptable to Washington.

Maynard, his confidents state, with full authority to go forward, is leaning strongly towards the candidacy of Superior Court Judge John Burns. Some leaders are expecting that he will make an announcement to this effect late today.

Judge Burns was appointed to the bench by Gov. Ely. He is the youngest man ever given this honor, and the governor has been intensely proud of the appointment.

COLD TOWARD BURNS

In speeches he has made reviewing the achievements of his administration the governor had rarely failed to mention Burns. At various times recently he has included Burns with Joseph W. Bartlett, Professor Frank Simpson and General Charles H. Cole as men whom he could support as his successor in office.

But it is being said now that the Governor has turned cold to the Burns candidacy because of his acceptability to Washington coupled with the pending Farley speech.

In the face of these developments, adherents of the Governor are urging him to reconsider his determination not to stand for a third term.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, although not a delegate, will play a prominent part in the convention. He expressed confidence today that Ely would not refuse if the convention gets into a jam.

BARTLETT IN RACE

Joseph P. Carney, Internal Revenue Collector, today issued the following statement:

"I have not entered the Gubernatorial race. I'm simply going along with my duties as collector of Internal Revenue and Emergency Relief Administrator."

The name of Joseph W. Bartlett, former chairman of the Civil Works Administration and a member of the Massachusetts Emergency Finance Board, will be placed before the Convention for governor, by Mayor Patrick Duane of Waltham.

From every section of the state, the vanguard of the Democracy was today descending upon the "Heart of the Commonwealth." Late today the resolutions committee will sit in the crystal room of the Hotel Bancroft to listen to more proposals for party platform planks. Two such meetings have taken place in the Hotel Bellevue, Boston.

William Murphy, of Marlborough, president of the Middlesex county Democratic organization, will be chairman of the rules committee. There is sentiment in favor of adopting the national convention rules as a model, with the much criticised two-thirds rule deleted.

CONNERY HALTS BOOM

Under the new pre-primary convention law, conventions must be held not later than Friday. Whether this means that the convention must end by midnight on the 15th is a moot question among the convention officials. Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook has declined to give an opinion.

A movement to obtain support for Congressman William P. Connery of Lynn has been nipped in the bud by the congressman. From Washington, Connery has issued a statement saying he is not a candidate, but will seek renomination to his present post in the September primary. Telegrams to this effect have been sent to Delegate Thomas A. Niland of East Boston and to Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the Democratic State Committee.

OTHERS MAY FILE

At pre-primary conventions such as are to be held tomorrow, only candidates for state-wide office can be endorsed for nomination. Those endorsed will be entitled to have such fact appear after their names on the ballot and will have the party machine at their backs. There is nothing, however, which prevents any other candidate from contesting such endorsement in the September primary. Former Mayor Curley is on record as saying that he will do this in the event that he fails to be the choice of the convention.

Governor Ely will sponsor a plank before the resolutions committee today calling for complete endorsement of the Roosevelt administration.

There is some likelihood that the Governor's presentation may be challenged. Former Senator Michael J. Ward of Roxbury, right hand man to former Mayor Curley, declared that the resolution should go in by all means but that it should be presented by some one who has been with the Roosevelt administration 100 per cent.

On the other hand, former Governor's Councillor James H. Brennan of Charlestown, a strong Roosevelt champion, said that "it would be a very gracious act on the part of the Governor."

"I think we should give strong endorsements to Roosevelt, Ely and Walsh," he declared. "It's case of three aces against two deuces."

Brennan, in commenting upon the return of the convention system, pointed out that in the last convention prior to the adoption of the direct primary, Eugene Noble Foss got the nomination on a "mail order ballot," was elected, and served three years. For the next two years, David I. Walsh served as chief executive. He cited these victories for the Democracy as a happy augury for continued Democratic success.

There is speculation also as to whether the Roosevelt administration will give some sign of a preference. That there is such a possibility some seem to think. Certainly the announcement that Postmaster General James A. Farley, keynote speaker at the big dinner preceding the convention tonight at the Hotel Bancroft, will deliver his address over a national hookup, has aroused keen interest in what he will say.

Other speakers at the "love feast" tonight will be Chairman Maynard of the state committee, Senator Walsh, Governor Ely, James Roosevelt and former Senator and present National Committeewoman Isabelle O'Neil of Rhode Island.

Insofar as issues are concerned, former Mayor Fitzgerald believes that an important one will be adequate relief for the milk farmer. Fitzgerald will offer a plank placing the party squarely behind a move to give the milk producer a decent price for his product and at the same time be fair to the consumer in the big cities. He thinks the Democrats can capture the farmers' votes which for more than 40 years have clicked into the Republican ballot boxes.

Mayor Russell of Cambridge, one of the many gubernatorial hopefuls, prompted to speech by the claims of former Mayor Curley and other rivals on their rosy prospects for capturing the nomination, states that there are Russell delegates in the convention from every senatorial district and ventures the opinion that they are better organized than those of any other candidate.

"This is due," the mayor states, "to the enthusiasm that they have put into their work rather than to any effort of mine."

He concludes his remarks with this statement:

"That is where the fight is to be made and nowhere else."

ROBERT WANTS POST

Another prospective candidate has entered the field for the nomination of secretary of state. He is Camille J. Roberti, New Bedford attorney. His friends believe that because the Republicans nominated Oscar U. Dionne of New Bedford for state treasurer in an effort to attract Franco-American votes, the Democrats should offset this by nominating Robert.

New proposals for party platform planks deplore the failure of the Republicans to take action against the showing of motion pictures tending to destroy morals or incite to crime, suggested by Rep. Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester; propose adoption of unemployment insurance, reorganization of the courts, probation reform, extension of the Norfolk Prison Colony idea of rehabilitating prisoners, nationalization of armament industry, for taxing government securities and salaries, lowering of the old age pension limit to 60 years, and one national system of banks under the federal government by the young Democrats of Massachusetts.

The same organization favors the Eastman plan for railroad reorganization, wants the federal income tax rates boosted, and endorses unification of production and distribution of power and light.

So Dillinger Was Arrested!

By Associated Press

St. Louis, June 13—Well, they arrested Dillinger last night; pulled him off a freight train.

He'd been down in Tennessee. When they nabbed him, not a shot was fired, nor even a gun drawn.

He made no effort to conceal his identity. When detectives asked his name he said: "Dillinger."

The sleuths were all but speechless.

"Dillinger?" they repeated. "Not —not—John Dillinger?"

"My name's Joe," he answered. "John's my cousin."

He was to be turned loose today.

CHILD IS DEAD, DOCTOR SCORED

Following the death in the Isolation Hospital today of Norma Brewer, 7, of Marion street, Lynn, two doctors, one from Lynn and the other from Swampscott, face grave charges before the State Health Association.

The charges have been lodged by Dr. James A. Dumas, Lynn health commissioner, who states that the physicians failed to make report of the condition of the child as required by law in connection with contagious diseases.

The girl was taken to the Isolation Hospital after having received treatment in another Lynn hospital.

She was bitten by a dog five weeks ago while visiting relatives in Middleton and one of the doctors involved sewed the wound while the other treated her afterwards. The dog disappeared after the biting and has not been located.

Woman Fined $185 for Her 36 Fish

Montpelier, Vt., June 13—Laura Dane of Sheffield paid dearly for a pleasant day of fishing when she was fined $185.60 by Judge N. A. Norton of Lyndonville for taking 36 short trout. The law says all trout of less than six inches must be thrown back, but 36 of Miss Dane's catch were under that length.

Shoe Union Scales Fixed for 2 Years

Unless the cost of living increases within the next two years, price lists and working conditions in 27 Lynn shoe factories will remain the same, according to an announcement by the United Shoe and Leather Workers' Union.

Present agreements were due to expire August 1. If the cost of living rises, it is stipulated that negotiations may be reopened.

We're thinking of YOU tonight

—and your husband and your children and your home

TWILIGHT has fallen like a shadow over a large part of the nation. In rows of homes along city blocks and in mansion and cottage throughout the countryside, windows gleam with golden light. It is bedtime for tiny tots who snuggle down under the covers, while mothers tuck in the Baby Pepperell Crib Blankets that will hug their little ones warmly through the long night.

While children sleep, the night express hurls itself through the darkness. The engineer at the throttle wears overalls of Pepperell Denim and a shirt of Pepperell Chambray. Back in the club car, alert business men enjoy the enforced relaxation of travel. Well dressed? Yes. And the labels on their shirts read "Lord Pepperell," just like the labels on their shorts and pajamas.

Somewhere at the end of the journey, these travelers will disperse to homes and hotels. Homes where Lady Pepperell Sheets bring rest to the weary—hotels where some sort of Pepperell sheets provide the essential service of the inn.

But night is gay, too. From a country club float strains of music. Inside there is dancing. Colorful dresses of Pepperell Rayons are settings for jewels of feminine beauty.

And night is mysterious. The mournful hoot of a lonely owl is heard on a wooded mountain where tall pines, ghost-like in the moonlight, shelter a hunter's camp. Inside the cabin, the frosty air meets defeat not from the dying embers of a fire on the hearth, but from the soft, thick Pepperell Wool Blankets. On a nail over the bunk is hung an outdoor jacket of sturdy Pepperell Duvetyn.

. . . friendly clothes. In countless rooms where people sleep, clothes are ready for the morrow. Pepperell Print dresses—work shirts for the farmer and factory hand, made of Pepperell Chambray — suits lined with Pepperell Rayon—sheer dainty Pepperell Rayon lingerie.

That's the picture we see. Imaginary, but very real. To us it brings a renewed sense of Pepperell's responsibility to you people who buy our many fabrics.

To you it may bring a more vivid picture of the great variety of cotton goods which carry the Pepperell label. It may give you faith in the Pepperell name and trademark. We hope so. Your faith is our biggest and most valuable asset.

Day and night we shall continue to think about the people who are using Pepperell fabrics and depending on the Pepperell name. It is not your part to think of Pepperell day and night, but we pledge you that it will be worth your while to remember our name when you purchase.

DUCE MAY LIST HITLER FOLLIES

By Universal Service

Berlin, June 13—Austria will be the pivot point on which the conversations between Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler will turn in their first meeting tomorrow near Venice.

The wave of Nazi terrorism which is sweeping Austria has become so serious that unless Hitler agrees to use all his influence to bring this violent agitation of his Austrian followers to an immediate end, there is fear here that this historic interview will close coldly.

There is both hope and nervousness in Berlin over the forthcoming meeting of the two dictators. That the Italian premier will read Hitler something close to the riot act for the errors in Nazi policy, domestic as well as foreign, is the belief of informed Berlin circles.

YOUNG ASTOR GETS RING, THREATS

John Jacob Astor, 3d, has his ring back — the $170,000 Napoleonic gem he gave to Miss Eileen Gillespie as an engagement ring — but he's "got to be good."

The ring, which now takes its place in history with the happiness-wrecking Hope diamond, was returned to the 21-year-old millionaire by his former fiancee's parents in exchange for a written apology for "his language to their daughter, and a retraction of his threats concerning her and her family."

Society, of course, is all a-dither as to what threats the Astor youth, a personable, rather shy lad who, heretofore, determinedly refused to discuss his private affairs with anyone, might possibly make against lovely Eileen Gillespie, whose serene, dark-haired beauty and undeniable charm have made her generally beloved in her aristocratic young set.

Also, "they" would like to know the immediate destiny of the ring which has for its central stone a magnificent, 32-carat diamond that once gleamed from Empress Eugenie's favorite diadem.

Astor, not so long ago, when he was demanding the ring from the Gillespies via the newspapers, indicated that, while he would not give it to his present fiancee, Miss Eileen Tuck French of Park Avenue and Newport, for an engagement ring, he would like her to have it.

WHAT WILL ELLEN DO?

When and if he got it back, he thought he might have it set back into the brooch of which it was the principal sone when it was the property of his grandmother, Mrs. William Astor, who once ruled Newport like Catherine ruled Russia.

But, now, after all this hocus-pocus, the more or less "400" is wondering whether Miss French an independent young beauty, will have any desire to possess, let alone be anywhere near, the baleful rays of this ill-fated gem.

Public opinion has always had ample opportunity to make willy-nilly decisions regarding the Astor affairs, for the Astors have always done things in the grand and fearless manner. A trait, the creaking but still gossiping pillars of Newport agree, has been handed down to them by the first John Jacob Astor, a man who said his say and let the chips fall where they would.

A notable example of this Astor quality was provided by the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, father of our young man, when he sought to marry Madeleine Talmadge Force. A divorced man and more than twice as old as she, the announcement of their engagement evoked a nationwide clamor of criticism.

Four of the highest dignitaries in the Episcopal church agreed that the canon law of their church forbade such a union, handed down the decision that they would not permit any clergyman under their jurisdiction to perform the ceremony.

TWO PREACHERS FOUND

There were countless pulpit attacks levelled at the prospective society bridegroom and his 18-year-old bride-to-be, and the Force family were "terribly upset."

Calmly, even smilingly, the colonel disregarded all this and directed his agents to find a minister who would perform the ceremony. They found not one, but two, just in case one might weaken at the last minute.

Col Astor's death was even more dramatic and attention-getting. He lost his life, as you will doubtless recall, in the sinking of the Titanic.

Cashier Seized in Trolley Co. Theft

Derby, Conn., June 13 (INS)—William P. Reilly, 46, East Derby carbarns cashier, was under arrest today after he allegedly confessed stealing $1200 from the Connecticut trolley company the last year. Reilly, according to state police, admitted that to hide his shortage he had invented a story of being held up and robbed in his office May 21.

Curley Urged for U. S. Post, Report

Former Mayor James M. Curley has been recommended to President Roosevelt for appointment to the Stock Exchange Board, according to rumors in Washington.

It also was said that Senator David I. Walsh had been consulted by the administration relative to the appointment.

ELLEN TUCK FRENCH
Ellen Tuck French, fiancee of John Astor, 3d, whom he says he will marry some time this summer, today was silent on the statement by Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie, mother of his former fiancee, that Astor had threatened her daughter if she did not return a $170,000 engagement ring.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR, 3D
Right in the midst of all the Astor-French-Gillespie ring confusion is John Jacob Astor, 3d, himself. He got his ring back from Eileen Gillespie but, reports say, he had to promise "to be good." Society, of course, is upset over the whole affair and the ring promises to enter the class of other historic gems.

EILEEN GILLESPIE
After she received a written apology, Miss Eileen Gillespie returned the $170,000, 32-carat diamond ring to her former fiance, John Jacob Astor, 3d, who went on a brideless honeymoon after his engagement to Eileen was broken off. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

ASTOR ROMANCE LINKED TO ALFRED VANDERBILT

(This is the concluding article in a series setting forth some of the highlights in the history of two of America's oldest and most socially prominent families, soon to be united with the forthcoming marriage of John Jacob Astor, 3rd, and Ellen Tuck French.)

By PEGGY DOYLE

It would be impossible to write a series of articles on the French family without including the most glamorous masculine figure among the great families of America in the last three decades — Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt.

This handsome, debonair world-traveler, horseman, bon vivant and perennial favorite of women married Miss Elsie French, aunt of Francis Ormond French (father of Ellen Tuck French), in 1911. She was then the belle of Newport society and considered the catch of the year. But before his death on the Lusitania, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt had attained interest beyond measure among women of all classes with a flair for the romantic.

His first child, William H. Vanderbilt, was born November 24, 1901, and all seemed to be going smoothly in his life when suddenly society was stunned with the announcement that his beautiful young wife was suing him for divorce.

WIFE GETS CUSTODY

In 1903, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was divorced and his wife received custody of their son. Three years later, young Vanderbilt married Margaret Emerson McKim, divorced wife of a prominent Baltimore physician. By his second marriage, Alfred Vanderbilt had two children, Alfred Gwynne, Jr., born September 22, 1912, and a second son born on September 23, 1914.

Throughout the whole of Alfred Vanderbilt's career, there had been a generous sprinkling of rumors of marriage, romantic escapades and scandals.

He was at one time rumored to be engaged to Lilly Lisle, an English musical comedy actress. Then came the word that he was to wed Lena Ashwell, a brilliant young English emotional actress.

Stories in the New York newspapers told of his running the gauntlet of servants to escape from the apartments of a Mme. Belle Mary Agnes O'Brien Baudoine-Hilton-Ruiz, whose Cuban husband later brought suit against Vanderbilt.

RUMORS OF MARRIAGE

It was persistently rumored in America that Vanderbilt was to marry Mme. Ruiz, who was sometimes known as Mme. Flores. This woman was named in the first Mrs. Vanderbilt's suit for absolute divorce from her husband.

And all the time, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was racing around the eastern part of the United States and England and France, showing one of the finest stables of blooded horses in the world, competing in water sports on the Thames in London and Surrey, and racing high-powered automobiles.

Vanderbilt was a director in the mighty enterprises of his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt. As the great grandson of the founder of the Vanderbilt millions, young Alfred was a capitalist whose power was tremendous.

On board the Lusitania on the fateful day when the German embassy advertised that passengers sailing into the war zone under a British flag did so at their own peril, New York messenger-boys brought telegrams of friendly warning to the young man.

Laughingly, he tossed them overboard. On the other side of the ship a German submarine lay in wait for the fast ocean craft. A torpedo rent her side.

"Run and get all of the children you can find," called Vanderbilt to his valet."

As they were found, the millionaire, taking a child under each arm, made frequent trips to the lifeboats.

"He will live as the hero of children," said a woman, who tear-dimmed, told her friends of her last view of the young millionaire.

A stout swimmer, fighting his way through the waves, saw a figure near him, with a half-adjusted life belt impeding his slow swimming. The stranger vainly sought to adjust the belt.

"I'm Vanderbilt," said the man with the misplaced belt. He faintly fought a minute longer, then sank.

Rep. Healey Grows Better

Washington, June 13 (AP)—Decided improvement in the condition of Rep. Arthur D. Healey (D.-Mass.), was reported today at the hospital where he has been confined since last Friday. Healey is suffering from an infection.

2 MEN LOST OFF BOSTON FISHER

The fishing schooner Mary E. O'Hara of Boston, Captain Charles Baker, came into Fish pier today with her flag at half-mast.

Captain Baker reported he had lost two members of his crew, William Clough, 63, married, and Joseph Eustis, 28, both of Boston, in a heavy fog on the Cape shore fishing grounds, off Cape Sable, N. S., Monday.

The two were hauling trawls in a dory 10 miles off Cape Sable when the fog settled. They never returned to the schooner, although Captain Baker cruised in the vicinity until late that night.

Baker said today he believed they may have been taken aboard by another fisherman or may even have rowed ashore. The sea was calm. It will take several days to check these possibilities because of limited communication facilities.

Supply Lack Halts Quincy PWA Work

Virtually all PWA work in Quincy was at a standstill today because of a lack of materials. New bids on the supplies are expected next week.

Meanwhile, only about 30 men were at work, with hundreds of jobless besieging the mayor's office and PWA headquarters.

Winchester Rate $27.43

Winchester's tax rate will be $27.43, according to figures compiled by the town finance committee and made public by its chairman, Raymond S. Wilkins.

17 OFF BURNED SHIP ADRIFT

By International News Service

New York, June 13—Seventeen of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Knut Hamsun, which burned and sank Sunday, 120 miles off the coast of Honduras, have been adrift ever since in an open boat under a burning tropical sun, it was learned today.

Captain George McBride, skipper of the United Fruit liner Zacatas, today radioed first news of the marine disaster, declaring he had rescued the captain of the lost ship and 15 of his men, as they drifted aimlessly over glassy seas under a flaming sky.

THE SMART NEW FORD V-8 SEDAN DELIVERY CAR
an advertisement on wheels
HERE is a delivery car built to stand up, to require the minimum of service—yet capable of performance few commercial vehicles (even at high prices) have ever delivered before.
Its new Ford V-8 engine gives it a "pick-up" and top speed that cut delivery time and enable the car to cover more ground. You'll find this particularly important on long trips or in difficult traffic conditions.
You will find, also, that in spite of its extra carrying space and power, this is the most economical commercial car Ford has ever built. That includes lower gas consumption and lower maintenance costs.
Look at these new Ford Delivery Cars yourself. Notice their many mechanical improvements, their unusually smart appearance and the newly designed cushion for driver comfort. A new Ford V-8 means not only lower delivery costs—it means a powerfully attractive daily advertisement for your business.

LOWELL KILLER OF 2 KNOWN, ARREST BELIEVED NEAR

By JAMES J. SMITH

absent from the city today on what is believed to be the last stage of their hunt for the fiend who shot Caouette and his wife to death.

WOMAN GIVES CLUE

The search for a tramp as the murderer was also revealed today as a smoke screen erected by investigators in the hope the killer would betray his identity.

Officials are understood to have carried on this angle for some time in the possibility the real murderer would reveal himself by some careless act.

The new evidence discovered eliminated the necessity of continuing this ruse, as investigators are convinced they have uncovered the killer.

State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neill and Assistant-District Attorney Paul A. Foley believe that Mrs. Caouette was hanging some of her baby's clothes on the line at the rear of the house when her attention was attracted to something at the rear of the hen-coop close to the woods.

FACE COVERED OVER

That she walked over, leaving the pan of clothes near the line and that when she confronted the killer at close range he fired, killing her.

It is believed that the killer then lay in wait for Caouette who probably had left the farmyard for only a few minutes in his roadster.

The manner in which the killings were done indicates that robbery might not have been the motive. It would have been a simple matter for the slayer to lock Mrs. Caouette in the hen-house or frighten her into silence as he ransacked the house.

SWEETHEARTS IN SCHOOL

She is known to have been in terror at frequent intervals of strangers approaching the house, and had several times expressed the desire to move away from the lonely farmhouse, where she has lived with her husband four years.

The apparently frenzied attack on Caouette is another indication that something more than robbery prompted the deed. With a gun in his hand, the killer might have forced Caouette into another henhouse. The keys to all the poultry houses and barn were found near the woman's body.

Dr. Manning told police that the slain couple were sweethearts since school days, in Somerville, and were devoted to each other to the last.

Police Hunt in Vain for Killer's Gun

OFFICER PEABODY — OFFICER BYRNE

In every nook and cranny of the Caouette home at Lowell, state police searched again today for the gun used in killing Mr. and Mrs. Paul Caouette, both formerly of Somerville. State Troopers Peabody and Byrne are shown as they probed in one of the corners of the cellar in quest of the missing weapon. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Jail for Hope Chest Thief

For the larceny of a hope chest, Kevin T. Lyons, 37, of Central street, Auburndale, today was sentenced to 15 days in the House of Correction by Judge Thomas Weston in Newton court. The chest and the linen it contains, were valued at between $1,500 and $2,000 by Mrs. Mary Coulthurst, of 1822 Beacon street, Brookline, its owner and Lyons' sister.

He agreed to return the chest, provided that she would sign a waiver for any damage claims against him because of any injury to the chest while it was left in his care.

Sunburn Saved, But Head Is Cut

Central Falls, R. I., June 13—Talk about the cure being worse than the disease, Mrs. Elizabeth Preston, 41, hopped off the sidewalk to avoid a friendly slap on her sunburned back and fell in the path of an approaching machine.

FIREMEN HELP QUINCY VETS

Three companies of the Quincy fire department dropped their duties today to become housewreckers in helping the city's American Legion post prepare for its July Fourth bonfire.

The firemen, under the direction of Chief William H. Sands, tore down the scorched framework of a two-story building in Mechanic street, which was swept by fire two months ago.

The lumber was then transported to Merrymount, where the legion posts will have a huge bonfire in connection with their annual celebration of the Fourth of July.

PLANT PLANS IN STATE'S HANDS

By Associated Press

Washington, June 13—Although encouraging communities to use idle factories for manufacturing goods to be distributed to the needy, the Federal Relief Administration denied today that it plans to take over factories as a national policy. This followed publication of the fact that two idle Massachusetts underwear plants are about to be turned by state action into "emergency work administration" projects, to make clothing for the unemployed.

It was said that the project merely carries on what has been done for the last three or four years. The Federal Emergency Relief Administration is not conducting any survey looking to similar national action.

"The Federal Administration," it was said, "gives money to the States for relief work which is mingled with their own money, and the States thereafter have to use the money for such a purjurisdiction. If the States want pose, that is up to them."

Man Dies in Talk About Death

Toronto, Ont., June 13 (AP)—Charles Shaw stood on the platform of a small gospel hall to deliver a sermon, a warning to his audience to be prepared for death.

"One never knows when one might go out of this life," he said. "I love my Lord."

"I-I'm getting short of breath," he gasped—and died.

Cable Ship Home; Sees 24 Icebergs

St. John's, Nfld., June 13—After a 14-month cruise to many lands, the cable ship Cambria arrived in port to replenish her bunkers. Her repair work took her down the Mediterannean, around Africa to the British West Indies and up the Atlantic seaboard.

Captain H. A. Davison said 24 icebergs had been sighted off the Newfoundland coast.

Quarrel Caused Leap, Say Police

A possible fracture of the skull and numerous contusions and abrasions were suffered by Andrew Dailey, 45, of West Newton st., South End when he either fell or jumped from a second story window at his home.

SLATTERY GIRL TRIES SUICIDE

Helen Slattery, 18, of Superior st., Swampscott, slashed her wrists with a razor blade in an attempt to commit suicide, today, according to the police.

She was treated in her home by Dr. Loring Grimes, where condition is not considered serious.

The Slattery girl filed suit in Superior Court, yesterday, seeking $10,000 from Hyman Prevoir of St. Luke rd., Brighton, charging that she was thrown from a motorcycle operated by him.

Two Convicted in Kidnap Plot

Chicago, June 13 (UB)—Fully recovered from his wounds suffered when kidnapers tried to slug him into unconsciousness in the Morrison Hotel here last February, E. P. Adler, Davenport, Ia., banker and newspaper publisher, heard his assailants plead guilty.

James Lacey, 33 and Ben Wolfram, 20, were sentenced from one to five years in prison on kidnaping charges. Another defendant, Charles Frederick Mayo, hanged himself in a jail cell the night after the attack upon Adler. Another defendant, Edward Kindrege, was freed.

J. J. BRENNAN ARRESTED IN AUTO FRAUDS

Attorney John J. Brennan, 29, of Cutler street, Somerville, vice-president of that city's board of aldermen, was arrested today on secret indictments charging larceny and uttering forged releases in connection with alleged insurance claim frauds.

Brennan's arrest was the result of testimony given to the grand jury by his secretary, Miss Mary J. Cronin of College avenue, West Medford. She pleaded guilty to indictments in connection with the same case last Thursday and later went before the grand jury.

The larceny counts involve approximately $4500.

BRENNAN CHARGES

Brennan is specifically accused of being an accessory before the fact to uttering and publishing as truth forged instruments purporting to be discharges for money, knowing them to be false, and with intent to injure and defraud.

Miss Cronin was taken before Dunbar F. Carpenter, special investigator named by the State Supreme court in insurance frauds, on a writ of habeas corpus after appearing before the grand jury a few days ago.

BARRED FROM GIRL

At that time Brennan sought to speak with her, but was denied that privilege by court officers who escorted her.

The prosecution against Brennan will probably be placed in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Daniel Gillen, it was indicated.

Brennan is accused of the larceny of $3062 and a draft for that amount from the Lumbermen's on May 28, 1933, in connection with an accident in Chelsea, in which John J. Kirkwood of 526 Broadway, South Boston, was injured.

TWO ACCIDENTS LISTED

He is also accused of the larceny on April 20 of $200 and $100, respectively, from the same firm in connection with the same accident, because of injuries suffered by Marlin Keely of 532 Broadway and William J. Burke of Knowlton street, both of South Boston, passengers in Kirkwood's car.

He is further accused of the larceny of $1250 from the Royal Indemnity Company on Aug. 14, 1933, in connection with an accident on Chelsea bridge, in which Michael McDonough, 11 Ellsworth street, Somerville, was hurt.

HARNEY FLAYS WALSH, ELY

Frank J. Harney of Lynn, in an open letter today to Democratic convention delegates accusing Senator Walsh of favoring both Republicans and Democrats, declared that should Senator Walsh receive the indorsement he (Harney) would become a candidate for the United States Senate.

Harney declared Senator Walsh, by his silence, "has indorsed the vicious attacks made by the 'Republican' Governor Ely during the past few months upon our great Democratic leader, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Walsh's retention of hundreds of Republicans in positions that belong to Democrats violates the Jeffersonian principles of the Democratic party, Harney said.

FIVE LIVES IS PRICE OF TRIP TO BOSTON

Susanville, Cal., June 13—Because Joe Fazio had persuaded Peter Alcot's wife and two children to leave his home here and go to Boston, Alcot stabbed Fazio and four other persons to death, he told authorities here today.

"He broke up my family," he said. "Now I have broken up his."

Alcot, a 45-year-old lumber mill worker, set out to kill only Joe Fazio, 45, proprietor of a grocery store, and the latter's grown daughter, Sara, whom he blamed for the recent departure of his family, according to his story.

"I went to Fazio's house and killed him," read a reputed confession in the hands of District-Attorney Grover C. Julian. "I stabbed him and put him in the bath tub where I washed away the blood was cutting him up, when Mrs. Fazio and John (the grocer's son) came to the house. I could not get away, so I killed them, too."

Alcot, according to the statement, found Sara Fazio in an automobile with Mrs. Lena Amistani, a neighbor.

"I didn't want to kill Lena, only the girl. But I couldn't help it."

While, he said Julian was preparing to charge the man with five stabbings, peace officers were taking special precautions against possible lynching.

All-Day Parking Fought By Police

Cambridge police are still on the warpath to prevent all-day parking of motor cars in Harvard and Central squares. They had 21 motorists in East Cambridge District court yesterday on charges of illegal parking. A majority were fined $5 each. The war is to continue, as the merchants have complained that all-day parkers are injuring their business.

BUSINESS GAINS ON LONDON EXCHANGE

"No visitors" is the rule in the London stock exchange, but H. R. Knickerbocker, star foreign correspondent of International News Service, wanted to see the workings of that body so he donned a silk "topper" and crashed the door—successfully. In the third article of his series on British recovery Knickerbocker tells how business is booming at a great rate on the London exchange.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or in part forbidden.)

London, June 13—Hatless, coatless, collarless, shirtless, the bruised and indignant body of a gentleman who had been well dressed a few minutes before was propelled into Throckmorton street.

"Come again," jeered a swarm of other gentlemen in morning coats. "And bring your grandmother next time," added one of them.

The gentlemen in morning coats were stockbrokers. The gentleman on the pavement of Throckmorton street had just paid them an unauthorized visit on the floor of the London stock exchange. He picked himself up and departed, glad to have retained at least his trousers.

'BUM'S RUSH'

That is what happens to visitors, to any strangers who, ill-advised, attempt to violate the sacred precincts of that ancient and exclusive body of traders. Their first rule is no admittance. Their second rule is the "bum's rush" for any who violate rule number one.

The bruised and indignant gentleman was the last stranger but one to visit the floor of the exchange. The last visitor was your correspondent.

For in an investigation into British recovery one essential starting point is the London stock exchange. The history of economic depression and of economic recovery gives a leading role to the stock markets. They are the first to scent the trend of business. Their nose for the way business is going points the way long before business has taken it.

To all this my friends the stock brokers in the partners' room of one of the oldest London firms agree. But their views on the desirability of piloting a stranger through the exchange were not unanimous.

FACE DISCIPLINE

"You will be spotted at once," said an elderly broker.

"You don't look like a member and you don't look like a clerk," said another.

"When they spot you they will yell 'Louisville,' said a third, 'and then they will surround you and dance a wardance, and then tear your clothes off and throw you into the street. And if one of us has been seen with you we will be hauled up before the committee and disciplined."

"Never mind," exclaimed a fourth. He was young and he was Irish. "Come on. Here, try this topper."

He handed me a top hat. It was too small. It balanced precariously.

"Fine," exclaimed the Irish broker. "You'll do. Stick close to me. We will talk business to each other. Don't stare about. At the door we rush right in. Don't even look at the guards."

"Four thousand members," muttered my companion as we brushed past the guards and on our way in we were suddenly overwhelmed with the chatter of a thousand voices.

One or two brokers eyed my topper curiously. We made haste. There were at least 1000 men on the floor, but it was a quiet day. They may have been smilingly reflecting on their profits, for as one journal has expressed it, good news has been so frequent it is almost a bore."

Since June, 1932, the value of 365 representative stocks on the London exchange has increased $6,509,000,000.

Candid Visits Library

Into the Public Library, at Copley square, went the Candid Camera photographer to see what is going on there besides reading. He first met Gladys Martin, who was sewing bindings into damaged books. Then a new cover. Then back to the library shelves.

An ERA worker was assisting in improving and completing the filing system of the library. This is one of the several ERA projects of Boston by which many women are employed. The worker is Daisy Stafford.

OF THEE I SING, SAYS CONGRESS

By Associated Press

Washington, June 13—A song in praise of Congress—"to those real unselfish great men"—is Representative Sirovich's contribution to a party the House plans for adjournment day.

Sirovich, New Yorker, playwright and poet, wrote the words. Oldtimers did the music. A glee club of 40 Representatives will sing it.

The chorus goes:

For our nation's noble statesmen,
To the Congress of the U. S. A.
To those real unselfish great men,
Let's give thanks for them each time we pray!
They stand for liberty and fight for justice,
With special privilege to none, they say.
In war or peace time our faithful servant is the Congress of the U. S. A.

Acquitted, She Shoots Self

By Associated Press

Kansas City, June 13—Mrs. Dolly Elwell, Chicago, mother of two children, died of a self-inflicted bullet wound early today after months of brooding over the slaying of her husband, James Elwell, a deed of which she was exonerated.

An unsigned note found in the hotel room where she fired a bullet into her head late yesterday sent police on a search for the two children, James, six, and John, 19 months, over whom Chicago relatives expressed concern.

Addressed to a sister, Mrs. F. Vogeltanz, Chicago, the note said in part:

"Once I had everything. A home, babies—but for one insane moment, they would still be mine. Now there is nothing for me—nothing—as I haven't the right—"

Mrs. Vogeltanz said Mrs. Elwell had taken the children with her to Kansas City two months ago.

HEART SURGERY FORECAST

Cleveland, June 13 — A new type of heart surgery, promising one avenue of escape from the present tremendous heart death rate in the United States, was proposed to the American Medical Association today by Claude S. Beck, Cleveland surgeon. He pictured surgeons in the near future operating directly upon hearts. The hearts will be patched literally, he predicted, with grafts of tissue taken from other parts of the body.

Eleven years' experience with treatment of goiter with iodine was reported by James H. Means, M. D., and Jacob Lerman, M. D., of Boston. They said there is reason to belive the method is valuable, and that patients who do not seem to respond to iodine would be much worse off without it.

DUKE THREAT BOY JAILED

By International News Service

Newark, N. J., June 13—A 17-year-old Newark boy, who threatened to bomb the Somerville, N. J., estate of Doris Duke, tobacco heiress, prepared today to be escorted to the National Training school at Washington for an intensive course, calculated to purge him of false notions that villainy is romantic.

The youth, Thomas Layden, was still a trifle bewildered by the swift series of events precipitated by his threats to the richest girl in the world, and to Thomas M. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation.

His attempt to extort $3000 from each resulted in his speedy apprehension, arraignment, indictment and sentence.

quality of paper, with the best name in the world signed to it. There is no gold about it.

Who would have thought, when our "best minds" were predicting an early collapse of the Russian Soviet government that Russians would soon be inviting us to invest our feeble dollars in their safer gold bonds?

And who would have believed what is now the fact, that Russia would be producing more than twice the gold that the United States produces?

The learned senators object to the confirmation of Professor Tugwell as under-secretary of agriculture, on the ground that he is "not a dirt farmer." Leaving our other questions, is it necessary to be a "dirt farmer" to be a good under-secretary of agriculture?

The man who invented the sewing machine couldn't sew. You would not insist on having a seamstress in charge of a great clothing factory. The late American railroad builders, Vanderbilt, Harriman and Hill, never ran a locomotive, or drove spikes into railroad ties. But they could build and run railroads.

You can be a successful editor without knowing how to set type, although printers, among them the late Ed Matthews, of the New York Evening Journal, have been among the ablest of editors. You might be a good under-secretary of agriculture without knowing on which side of a cow you sit in milking. Professor Tugwell's appointment will be confirmed.

Is there to be no end of Bolshevism in this glorious country of ours?

Not content with selling milk at eight cents a quart to poor mothers, Mayor LaGuardia, finding that dealers in ice have combined to put up the price, plans a municipal ice plant to sell cheap ice with the cheap milk.

Is there to be no consideration for vested rights? Will it be seriously maintained in this country that the welfare of children and the peace of mothers are more important than the profits of an ice or milk dealer?

The determined Japanese, with low-priced money and cheap labor help, are reaching out for business. Bucharest reports Japan offers to renovate the Rumanian army, with flying machines, weapons of all kinds and ammunition factories in Rumania for twenty-five per cent less than any other bid.

Other nations will find it hard to compete with Japanese manufacturers and prices. Our nation, fortunately for its future, could live within its own boundaries, without any export business, if necessary. We could be as independent of Europe and Asia as we are now of Mars.

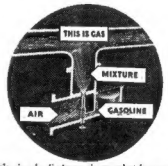
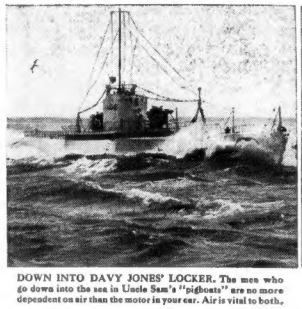
MOTORS NEED More Air THAN MEN
New "life" for your car in Gasoline that Mixes Better with AIR!



This simple diagram shows what happens when you "Step on the Gas."



DOWN INTO DAVY JONES' LOCKER. The men who go down into the sea in Uncle Sam's "pigboats" are no more dependent on air than the motor in your car. Air is vital to both.

THE VAPOR PRESSURE TEST. Socony Mobilgas is tested three times—first at the refinery, then in storage, and again after it has reached the pumps where motorists refuel.

HOW MUCH GASOLINE does your gas tank hold? Ten gallons—fifteen—twenty? Multiply that figure by several thousand and you have an idea of the amount of AIR your car uses to a single filling!

Here's the reason: Before gasoline can be burned—it must be mixed with large quantities of air.

It's easy to see from this that the power you get depends on how well your gasoline mixes with air. Slow-starting, sluggish pick-up, loss of power may easily result from a poor-mixing gasoline.

That's why we stress Climatic Control so much. This exclusive feature makes Socony Mobilgas mix better with air—all kinds of air. It delivers a uniformly good fuel-mixture in all kinds of weather—hot or cold, damp or dry.

Naturally, that means better performance. Full fuel value. Quick-starting—fast pick-up—dependable power!

Try the gasoline that mixes better with air! Stop at the sign of the Flying Red Horse—and fill up with Socony Mobilgas.

BRIGHT AND SUNNY when this picture was taken. But sundown brings coolness. Rain may come before home is reached. That's why you need gasoline with Climatic Control.

WELL SATISFIED with the way her car is performing. Hot weather or cold weather, dry days or damp—it makes no difference. She has Socony Mobilgas in the gasoline tank.

MRS. ROLAND G. HOPKINS very nearly convinced us at the luncheon for the sponsors of the Group Theater yesterday that the project will succeed . . . we say, very nearly, because we are the stoniest-hearted creature alive about little theater movements . . . and the mention of the word "arty" brings out the child in us; we want to throw things . . .

Nevertheless, Mrs. Hopkins was very convincing and a sponsor and guarantor list of 950 names was indeed impressive.

MRS. ROLAND G. HOPKINS

The fact, also, that the Pulitzer Prize Play, "Men in White," will be first offering sometime next October and will be followed by a new play "Gold-Eagle Guy" (based on the life story of Robert Dollar of the Dollar Line), gives one confidence . . . we had to restrain ourselves to keep from becoming a guarantor.

One could not doubt the sincerity and faith of the group which attended this luncheon to make their reports . . . and we have lived long enough to know that if you have a strong enough faith in something, it will surely succeed . . . we wish them well!

On our arrival we were greeted by a Fair Thing in navy blue, very lovely, very intelligent and the only lady present to boast of an attractive escort . . . Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Everts. Mrs. Everts is deeply interested in the ides of this theater group and has worked hard for its success . . .

Almost all of the members were attired in the dark blue of the mode . . . and yet, they all looked very dissimilar . . . some were frilly, others tailored, some were smart, some were comfortable . . . it didn't matter, it wasn't a dress parade—these ladies are really desirous of bringing new and better plays to Boston . . . and, as we admit, we believe they may do it if they all hang together . . .

Mrs. George S. Mumford in Brown Silk

AMONG THOSE PRESENT were Mrs. George S. Mumford, a charming lady in brown flowered silk to be different and a large brown hat . . . she has a sense of humor if we are any judge of such things.

Mrs. George B. Baker in blue and white flowered silk was helpful in her suggestions . . . that of having the plays scheduled for two before and two after Christmas earning her applause . . . at present it is impossible to forecast definitely just when they will come in. But come they WILL . . .

Mrs. A. L. West Movius was very stunning in black silk suit trimmed with white lingerie . . . she has been one of the over-the-top members with many guarantors to her credit and is out for many more . . .

A glowing tribute was paid to Mrs. J. Gardiner Bradley, who at first could not be hitched to this new venture, but who now has 27 guarantors to her credit . . .

Will Help Subscription Ticket Sale

MRS. ROBERT CUSHMAN listened attentively to the reports . . . not content to gather in the guarantors, she will do her bit toward getting them to buy subscription tickets, something else again!

Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram was seated at the head table . . . and Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French was glimpsed in pretty print with her guest, Miss Vera Ross of the Gilbert and Sullivan company now in town . . .

Others noted were Mrs. Gorham Brigham, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Miss Alice Tapley and Mrs. James Bailey. . .

Bacon-Pyne Wedding This Month

MANY BOSTONIANS will journey to New York this month for the marriage of Robert Ogden Bacon, Jr., and that rich heiress, Miss Frances Pyne . . . daughter of Mrs. Taylor Pyne. Miss Pyne was presented last season and immediately plighted her troth to young Bacon . . . he is leaving Princeton in his sophomore year, we believe, to take up his marital duties in earnest. We assume that the Gaspar Bacons, the Emmons, Daniel Bacon and Uncle Dr. Gorham Bacon will travel over to see their nephew married . . . Mrs. T. Lawrence Saunders (she was a Bacon) will likewise meander over from Newport . . . the Robert Bacons have a beautiful villa on Bellevue avenue at Newport. It will be very swell . . . and an heiress would be certainly welcome in any family these days.

Mrs. G. Bacon

Reggie Boardman and George von L. Meyer are on the committee who are arranging the first subscription dance of the season at the Myopia Hunt Club . . . which will take place on Saturday night after the races at Brookline. Which reminds us of a funny one . . . we learn that the residents of Sleepy Hollow were so sleepy the morning that the liquor option was being voted on in that town they all started off for business as usual . . . and when they arrived down on the 4:45 that evening, they discovered the town fathers had put one over on them and Sleepy Hollow was DRY . . . which left the Myopia Club without a bar, or the dull hope of one. We'll be blowed!

MISS MARY WALLACE TO BE HONORED AT DEDHAM TEA PARTY

NEW DEBUTANTE DOES HER BIT FOR WORTHY CHARITY

MISS DOROTHY WEST

MISS ANN MESERVE

MISS MARTHA T. BROWN

THE BEAUTIFUL OLD GARDEN adjoining the Colonial home of the Misses Hersey in Walnut avenue, Roxbury, was gay with youthful voices yesterday afternoon as the smart younger set did their bit for charity by serving as waitresses at the garden fete given for a worthy philanthropy. Miss Dorothy West, a post-debutante, was on hand to initiate Miss Ann Meserve, a debutante of the coming season, in the proficiency of punch-serving as Miss Martha T. Brown ladled out the refreshing liquid. Miss Meserve is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Meserve of Chestnut Hill and will spend the summer touring Europe with her grandmother. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Future Bride as Guest of Honor

AT THE TEA PARTY ON Friday in honor of a recent very significant engagement, there will be 12 pourers, drawn from the ranks of society's fairest members.

Mrs. Leslie Soule of Common street, Dedham, and her sister, Mrs. Elden MacLeod of Westwood, are giving the tea at Mrs. Soule's lovely home in honor of Miss Mary Wallace, whose betrothal to Mrs. MacLeod's son, Alexander MacLeod, was a recent announcement.

Presiding at the tea tables will be Mrs. Nelson W. Lee, Mrs. George C. Lee, Jr., Mrs. Josiah H. Child, Mrs. Charles A. Rhoads, Mrs. Arthur T. Lyman, Mrs. Edward Cunningham, all of Westwood, Mrs. Herbert Brainwell Shaw of Beacon street, Miss Anne Wallace of Salt Lake City, Miss Nancy Brigham of Newton Center, Miss Catherine Tappan of Needham and Miss Ann Soule, daughter of the hostess, and Mrs. William T. Jenney.

Miss Wallace is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace of Salt Lake City, Utah, and West Falmouth. Her mother is the former Margaret Whidden of Westwood. Mr. MacLeod has just returned from a trip around the world.

'God the Preserver' Is Science Subject

"God, the Preserver of Man," is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday. The golden text is: "As birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it."

Among the citations is the following from the Bible:

"And he said unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat; neither for the body, what ye shall put on."

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"In divine science, man is sustained by God, the divine Principle of being. The earth, at God's command, brings forth food for man's use."

Dinner Fete at Hall Home

Sounds of cheery voices will resound from the walls of the lovely old Colonial home in Dedham of Mrs. George Hall on Friday evening when her daughter, Miss Jean Hall, and Miss Louise Russell entertain about thirty of their close friends at dinner before taking their company to the Flannel Foal Frolic at Moseleys-on-the-Charles.

A dinner for twenty will be given by Mrs. Robert Knowles and Mrs. James Dean, Jr., whose guests will be treated to a bus ride from Cohasset, where the dinner will be held, to Dedham, the locale of the frolic.

Join Colony at Manchester

There will be a large group of young marrieds in the summer colony at Manchester this year, the latest to signify their intention of establishing their menage in that delightful spot being Mr. and Mrs. John T. Nightingale of Gloucester street, who were married at a fashionable ceremony at Villa Nova, Pa., last December.

Mr. Nightingale is a member of the Myopia Hunt Club at Hamilton and famed as an extremely cordial host among his intimates in the exclusive North Shore set. Mrs. Nightingale is the former Augusta Harrison of Villa Nova.

Helen Wills Moody Off for Wimbledon

San Francisco, June 13 (INS)—Asserting she had almost fully recovered from her back injury, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody today was preparing to leave tomorrow for New York, en route to England to "cover" the international tennis championship matches at Wimbledon.

Mrs. Moody has been inactive in tennis since injuring her back and defaulting to Helen Jacobs in the Forest Hills finals last year.

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

At a private showing yesterday of Marion Davies' new picture, "Operator 13"—the story ran first in Cosmopolitan Magazine and later in this newspaper—Joseph Brennan, talented manager of Loew's State Theatre where Miss Davies' new film will be shown for the first time publicly a week from Friday, was marveling at the beauty, grace and authenticity of an old-fashioned waltz— an old-fashioned Southern waltz danced at a military ball.

Marion Davies

Many of these spectacles seem so naturally and easily performed in many pictures that it is always interesting to learn of some of the difficulties that have gone into their screening. The fact that Director Richard Boleslavsky was convinced that hip-swinging and the modified hula-hula have no place in a Southern waltz, 1860 vintage, finally necessitated the appearance of Director Boleslavsky as temporary dancing master.

The waltz was rehearsed for two hours, with Marion Davies' personal orchestra providing the rhythm. Time came for the actual scene but, unconsciously, here and there, one or another of the modern girls in Southern garb would swing into a modern dance step.

Continually, Director Boleslavsky cautioned the players:

"This is an old-fashioned Southern waltz in one-two-three time. You must never walk your lady backward. You will have nothing of this wiggling—and we must weed out all the hula-hula."

Gary Cooper

The cast of "Operator 13," from the last historical novel written by the late Robert W. Chambers, includes Gary Cooper, Ted Healy, Katharine Alexander, Jean Parker, Russell Hardie, Sidney Toler, Douglas Dumbrille and the Four Mills Brothers.

Fay Wray Likely to Get Role Rose Hobart Created in Broadway Production

By JERRY HOFFMAN

Pinch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons

(Copyright, 1934, by the Hearst Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, June 13—When Frank Capra first attracted attention as the director of "Flight," "Submarine" and others, he made the team of Jack Holt and Ralph Graves great favorites, Holt has never lost his grip on movie fans and they often ask for Ralph Graves with him. Harry Cohn is going to try a new team, Holt and John Buckler, the stage actor he brought here.

Their first picture together will be "Eight Bells," a play by Percy K. Mandley in which Buckler scored in New York. Colin Clive and Rose Hobart were with him. Fay Wray will be the most likely selection for the Hobart role. It is a sea story on board a ship with English officers and a German crew at the outbreak of war. Bobby North is producing.

All that remains is for Paramount to bring Jean Arthur back to play opposite Francis Lederer to make here the typical Hollywood story. From the silent days into talkies, Jean was under contract to Paramount. She played leads, gags ingenues and finally wound up in their westerns. This was too much for Jean. She went to New York, became an instant stage hit. After runs in several plays such as "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" and "The Curtain Rises," Columbia brought her back. Last week Jean left again for New York after making several pictures, to fulfill a stage contract. Now Paramount wants her for the feminine lead in "The Pursuit of Happiness."

When Edna May Oliver returns to her home studio she will find them ready and waiting. Pandro Berman has bought a comedy of domestic life by Howard Buck to serve as the next movie for the four-faced comedienne. Original of the title was "Let's Have a Baby." Instead, it will be called "Let's Get Married." That seems fair enough, all things considered.

After they saw Alice Faye's work in "She Learned About Sailors" at a preview the other night the Fox heads went into a conference. Alice, they discovered was too good a comedienne to be used continually as a girl who tries to get the other woman's man! And so, instead of swaggering hips and arched looks, Alice will deal in love and laughter from now on. She's going to have strong company in her comedy debut with Shirley Temple and Jimmy Dunn as other principals. It will be "Angel Face" from a short story by Lewis Foster, which Edwin Burke is now adapting in New York. Richard Wallace, back from his vacation, will direct.

A Very Certain Man, Two Uncertain leaders of New Films

As Nick Charles, the famous sleuth of "The Thin Man," William Powell reaches the heights of his career according to advance reports Myrna Loy has one of her best parts, also. The film comes to Loew's State Theater Friday.

Lovely Genevieve Tobin is the uncertain lady of "The Uncertain Lady," which begins tomorrow at RKO Boston Theater. There is no uncertainty hovering around Miss Tobin to play comedy to the hilt—and her new film is described as a real comedy.

3 DRIVES BEGUN TO AVERT BIG STEEL STRIKE

By Associated Press

Government, industry and labor launched individual movements today aimed at averting a general strike of the nation's 400,000 steel workers.

While delegates to the convention of Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers convened in Pittsburgh for a strike vote, Roosevelt Administration advisers in Washington were drafting new labor resolutions to give the President "sweeping power to deal with the threatened situation."

One hundred business leaders of Gary, Ind. met and adopted a resolution warning that a "strike now would be tragic and fatal."

At Youngstown, O., members of the local union questioned the legality of a strike at this time. They were told the present contract between certain companies and the association has several months to run.

Members of the workmen's council of Inland Steel Co. employes at Indiana Harbor, Ind., issued a statement saying a ballot showed 97 per cent of the members there do not desire a strike.

Similar anti-strike stands have been taken by employes of the Jones, Ohio and Pennsylvania mills, company officials reported.

MISSING JAPAN CONSUL FOUND

By Associated Press

Shankhai, June 13—Eimei Kuramoto, Japanese vice-consul, whose disappearance nearly five days ago sent Japanese warships speeding to Nanking, was found alive today, wandering about an ancient cemetery on the edge of that city.

The Japanese announcement, said Kuramoto was well when discovered in the grounds of the historic Ming Tombs on the outskirts of Nanking. Chinese sources, however, said Kuramoto, found by Chinese police showed signs of a mental lapse and was in a state of exhaustion, presumably after several days of wandering.

Sardine Box Bomb in France Hurts 3

Paris, June 13 (AP)—A Parcel Post bomb exploded in the hands of a mail sorter in a branch post office here today, injuring three persons. The package was addressed to the President of the Society of Authors and Composers, and contained a bomb rigged up in a sardine box.

The explosion shattered the clerk's fingers and injured his face. Two fellow workers were slightly wounded.

Vera Van Is Best-Natured Performer on Air

Vera Van . . . The best-natured gal in broadcasting . . . Who once was told, "Your voice is so beautiful you must be homely as sin and at least 40" . . . But that was in a fan letter . . . From a lady listener . . . And gave Vera a laugh because she is exactly 20 . . . And her mirror tells her she is beautiful.

The Van family . . . For generations . . . Have called Marion, O., home . . . The town of the late President Harding . . . And her grandpa was General Van . . . Of the U. S. Army . . . And another ancestor Calvin Webster . . . Cousin of Noah Webster . . . Who knew all the best words.

Vera suffered from anemia . . . As a little girl . . . And the doctor recommended dancing school . . . Where she had lots of fun . . . Which built up into an income of nearly $100 a week . . . As early as eight years old . . . Which was not bad . . . Not bad.

Influenza interrupted her dancing . . . As she was on the verge of a vaudeville contract . . . When she was in her teens . . . And she nearly died . . . But recovered to go into musical comedy.

Not long ago . . . Spinal trouble wrecked her again . . . But once more she came through smiling . . . Carried on by her good nature . . . And she even sang . . . Which brought her the discovery that she had a voice . . . And gave her a thought . . . Why work hard dancing when she can stand still and sing.

That was five years ago . . . And she went West to recuperate . . . And was asked to try out for the "California Melodies" program . . . Los Angeles network cradle also for Bing Crosby . . . And the Boswell sisters.

The rest came in natural sequence . . . And now she is a featured soloist . . . On the Columbia network . . . And she thinks it's swell . . . And so do the listeners . . . While her dancing has been dropped . . . Parked somewhere on a high, dark shelf.

Vera has loads of what Ancestor Noah Webster had a word for . . . Personality . . . but even with fans . . . The boys will all tell you . . . She never takes herself seriously.

asks
Barbara Stanwyck
[OLD GOLD SMOKER SINCE 1933]

Dear Miss Stanwyck:—

The fact that Old Gold is easy on the throat is important to every smoker . . . man or woman. It means that one may smoke Old Golds from sunup to sundown, without throat discomfort.

But Old Gold's smoothness has an additional appeal to women. The absence of artificial flavoring in Old Gold not only makes it a smoother smoke . . . but a cleaner smoke . . . less apt to stain the teeth or to leave objectionable odor in the clothes or on the breath.

We do not say that Old Gold is the only good cigarette for the fastidious woman smoker. But we do say there is no purer or finer cigarette made.

Sincerely,
P. LORILLARD COMPANY, INC.
ESTABLISHED 1760

P. S.—The net of it is this, Miss Stanwyck: No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

NORMA PLANS TO DOLL UP FOR TRIAL

True To Type
GILBERT SELDES

Although my name is slightly associated with "First and Last" Ring Lardner," which appears today, I hope there is nothing improper in my expressing my admiration for the book.

Gilbert Seldes

I had nothing to do with it except the difficult job of choosing from hundreds of masterly pieces, those which went best together to make a book. In fact, my real trouble was to find some which I could omit. Even today my desk is full of rejected bits, and my eye falls on lines like: "I managed to fling the door wide enough to admit the entire dowager which by this time was giving vent to various college cries." And I wonder how I ever came to leave that one out.

On the other hand I managed to get in the account Lardner wrote for the New York American of a world's series—an absolute masterpiece of madness, concerned hardly at all with baseball and very much with three little kittens belonging to the Lardner family and doomed to die because Ring had promised a fur coat to the Mrs. if the Yankees won. And the Dempsey-Firpo fight. And the Democratic Convention in 1924. And a yacht race. And dozens of short articles which Lardner wrote for his syndicate about men and women and things in general.

In going over Lardner's early work I was surprised to discover that for about a year, just as he was beginning to write the great busher series, "You Know Me Al," Ring Lardner did the impossible—for him. That is, he wrote about half a dozen articles about sport which are a total loss, without his character, his intelligence, his wit and his taste. Maybe, he was intimidated by being in the big magazines—he certainly got over it fast enough. Maybe not. The real trouble, I think, was that for the first and last time, Lardner took sport seriously. After that, he didn't think sport was any more important than war or prohibition or chain letters.

One thing I think every writer for newspapers will appreciate: the astounding high level of Lardners' output. Of course the slaves who write a column every day will snort and note the fact that Lardner wrote only once a week; but they will also remember that many people who write once a month come nowhere near the heights which Lardner so easily attained. Of the 500 pieces or so which I read, there may have been a dozen which had no quality, perhaps a total of fifty which I judged could be spared. The rest were Lardner, which means they are better than anything else of the kind.

To me he was for twenty years one of the great American writers and incomparably the greatest of American comic writers. It is an honor to be in even a little way associated with his memory.

REUNION OPENS WELLESLEY EXERCISES

Dr. Vincent to Speak at Commencement; Comedy Offered

Wellesley College will begin its 55th commencement exercises on Friday with an alumnae reunion. Graduates during the past 50 years will be in attendance. Orchestra for dancing society will present a series of dances for their entertainment.

DR. VINCENT TO SPEAK

The formal exercises will be held Monday, when the commencement address and degrees are given. George E. Vincent, LL.D., president emeritus of the University of Minnesota, will deliver the commencement address. The degrees will be conferred by the president of the college, Miss Ellen Fitz Pendelton.

"Dear Brutus," James M. Barrie's comedy, will be presented on Friday and Saturday. Following the play Saturday evening, the traditional song competition and step singing by the seniors and members of the classes returned for reunion will be held on the chapel steps.

SERMON BY DR. BROWN

The baccalaureate services will be conducted in the chapel on Sunday by Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean emeritus of the Yale Divinity school.

The final graduation activities will take place on Monday. After the exercises, the graduating class will be guests at a luncheon.

The last festivity will be a class supper for the graduating class. In keeping with a long-standing tradition, engaged students run around the table and those who have been secretly married disclose the fact by standing on chairs.

G. E. ASKED TO AID EYE CASE

Electrical science was called upon today for removal of a steel splinter from the eye of Charles L. Knight, Jr., 23, of Stratford street, West Roxbury, son of a Boston surgeon and president of the '32 class at Dartmouth.

Surgeons at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary have been unsuccessful since Sunday night in their efforts to remove the splinter. Today they called on the General Electric Company for a new magnetic device that is expected to dislodge the steel.

Young Knight, a canoe enthusiast, was struck by the splinter while he worked with a cold chisel on canoe repairs Sunday. His father took him to Dr. W. Holbrook Lowell, chief of staff at the infirmary.

Ely Signs New Rules for Nov. 11

Partial victory in the battle to make Armistice Day a legal holiday was recorded when Governor Ely signed a bill making Sunday laws apply from 7 a. m. until 1 p. m.

Under the new law, sponsored by the American Legion, stores and factories must remain closed during the hours generally devoted to memorial exercises.

As Brighton High Pupils Won Awards

One of the most colorful class day exercises ever held at Brighton High School included the awarding of scholarships, tree planting ceremonies and a dance for the senior class. The Anna Judson scholarship for excellence in English was awarded to Miss Willa Thompson, class poet. M. Virginia Kelly, John F. Melia and John F. Carson, Jr., were class marshals. It was the first time a girl was chosen marshal. (Pictures by the Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

HAROLD GOLDEN — RUTH RAFERTY — ROBERT SHANKLAND

Honors were bestowed on Harold Golden, Ruth Raferty and Robert Shankland after an address of welcome by Harriet Breen. These graduates were awarded scholarships for general excellence in their studies.

ENGLISH HIGH TO GRADUATE 681 BOYS

Beginning tonight with the graduation of 681 boys from English High School, the 17 high schools of the Boston public school system will graduate 6,275 boys and girls this week.

Headmaster Walter F. Downey will present diplomas to the graduates of English High School at exercises to be held at Tremont Temple, School Committeeman Frederick Sullivan will address the graduates.

More than 800 boys and girls, graduates of the Somerville High School, will receive their diplomas at exercises to be held tonight in the Tufts College gymnasium. The speaker will be Patrick T. Campbell, superintendent of the Boston schools.

A record class of 315 will be graduated from Arlington High School tonight in the school auditorium.

Graduation exercises at Wentworth Institute were held today on the Institute field, Roxbury, and certificates were given to 167 graduates.

MILLEN'S BRIDE HAS DATE WITH JAIL BARBER

Can't Get Wave, Hair in Crimps; 3 Men Prisoners Calm

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Dedham Jail, June 13—Norma Brighton Millen today began making plans for her courtroom appearance when she goes to trial next Wednesday as accessory after the Needham Trust Co. robbery.

The first item on her list of necessary preparations was a haircut.

She sent word to Jailer Lawrence Dewar that she desired an appointment with the jail barber the day before she goes to court.

The reservation was made and Norma, the jailers said today, will be the most beautiful woman prisoner ever to sit in the barber chair in the Norfolk County House of Correction.

Other beautifying necessities Murton Millen's bride will have to provide herself.

HAIR IN CRIMPS

Her request for a finger wave could not be complied with, she was told. She was urged to have some other woman inmate "help her out" on that score.

However, Norma has devised her own substitute. From relatives she procured a package of "crimpers"—soft leather strips, about three inches long—which she can use to curl her chestnut locks.

With her trial not many days distant, the daughter of the retired Natick minister is rapidly regaining her calm and composure after her hysterical response to her husband's conviction as a murderer for whom the electric chair looms as a certainty.

Norma has assumed a more stoical acceptance of her husband's fate and is now concerning herself with the outcome of her own trial, it was reported at the jail.

RESIGNED TO DESTINY

One jailer said: "Norma is getting along fine. She isn't crying any more. She's O. K."

In the "pit" cell block below, her husband, his brothers, Irving, and their convicted companion Abe Faber, have similarly resigned themselves to their destiny.

The Millen brothers read most of the morning and were reported to be "eating heartily." Faber, much improved and feeling stronger, is also eating, and today took up the scientific magazine which he dropped last Saturday when he was overcome by the guilty verdict.

There were no visitors at the jail to see any of the killers or Norma, although her minister-father was expected later in the day.

Today was somewhat of a letdown after the extended family attendance yesterday.

The men have not been exercised again and will not be until new arrangements have been made.

DR. SHATTUCK CASE DELAYED

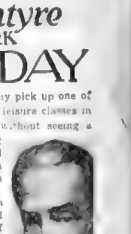
Hearing of narcotic charges against Dr. Ray H. Shattuck, Abe Faber's defense alienist, was postponed in Dorchester court today because his counsel, William R. Scharton, was busy in Superior court.

The case was continued until the 27th.

Dr. Shattuck is charged with issuing illegal prescriptions for narcotics.

O. O. McIntyre
NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

New York, June 13—I rarely pick up one of those glossy magazines of the leisure classes in club lounge or dental office without seeing a photograph of a somewhat mysterious worlding called Snowy Baker. His association seems only with men of wealth and celebrity.



O. O. McIntyre

He may be in polo togs breezing down a Hollywood field, on the tennis courts of Palm Beach or bob-sledding at St. Moritz. Always very much the gentleman of leisure and leading the fabulous life of Reilly. Like Lawrence of Arabia, he seems to be everywhere, knows everybody but has no intimates.

Those I ask who should know of him, praise his gallantry in sports but no one seems to know his antecedents or the source of his income. He has an interesting face, aquiline nose, piercing eyes and hair en brosse. The sort that makes ladies forget conversation when he comes into a room.

Almost any novelist could fit him in the opening chapter of a novel with a locale on the Riviera, Newport or Ostend. The only person I have seen in real life who surpasses his photographic nonchalance is the urbane Ben Ali Haggin. I'll probably learn Baker, like Lexington, Ky., born Haggin, is a product of Platform, Neb., or something.

Don Barclay, eccentric comedian of the old burlesque school with the profile of a toucan and hair part in a lightning streak, has appeared in several movies recently and may at last be finding his niche. He was one of the few comics to excite the interest of Florenz Ziegfeld. He was spotted in a Follies but the inexorable box-office statistics refused to justify the hopes. And Barclay would vanish, bob up again, almost click in a big way and vanish again.

An open fronted museum on Broadway is presenting a modified version of the old wiggle dances of the circus lots to the clarinet tune that suggests the veiled ladies of Turkey. The author of that famous tune, incidentally, which was officially known as "Danse du Ventre," was none other than the present Congressman Sol Bloom, of New York. During the famous performance of "Little Egypt," at the 1893 World's Fair in Chicago it was called colloquially "The Hootchie Kootchie." At the time Bloom wrote it he was a composer and foremost music publisher on Broadway.

James M. Cain, the author, is conducting a one-man campaign to make New York city catfish conscious. Every middle-westerner and southerner knows the indescribable gustatory joy of this lowly delicacy. Eating in many parts of the world I have never encountered a dish—not even the steak pudding at Simpson's on the Strand, the pressed duck at Tour d'Argent or the sole of Marguery's—to compare with the fried catfish served at Hud Faudree's fly-blown short order counter back home.

Cain was introduced to fried catfish by two estimable Southerners, Lawrence Stallings and Morris Markey. He was entranced and decided the horrible name had prevented it from becoming a famous delicacy. So he hunted up the Indian name for catfish—Tuce. The first American restaurateur, Horchen in Berlin featured it for years, to put it on his menu was Papa Moneta down on a bend of Mulberry street. Moneta has created a special sauce, serves the dish cold, and lists it on his menu as Tuce a la Cain. The Waldorf, Ritz, and Pierre's are following this lead. And thus is fried catfish at last coming into its own in the metropolis.

Nearest to the egg-beaten white flakiness of fried catfish—found mostly under rocks in muddy streams—I imagine is the pompano, so delectable in the New Orleans culinary array. And second in piscatorial line is the Colorado mountain trout if broiled almost immediately after caught. Michael Arlen, running across it en route to California, thought it America's most savory dish. A full sized mudcat, as we should term it along the Ohio, resembles Wilton Lackeye with a Lawrence d'Orsay mustache and a Louis Sobol grin.

And William Wellman doesn't think Bing Crosby should have been starred in "We're Not Dressing." He thinks it should have been Sally Rand. Incidentally, an imaginative fellow such as Wellman would be dandy to direct a movie I plan on wakeful nights. It is one of those revolving sectional things in the manner of "Grand Hotel," only it will be filmed in Central Park.

Loads of Fun for X-9 Free Circus

Only three days left before members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club head joyously for Norumbega Park; where the ever-growing youngsters' organization of the Boston Evening American stages a free circus and a field day on Saturday.

There will be loads of fun at Norumbega Park Saturday for boy and girl members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club, with all members admitted free on display of both membership card and badge, and with free rides, a treasure hunt and food and refreshments at half price—to members.

One feature will be the Roxbury Post No. 44 American Legion Juvenile Band of 75 pieces, made up of boys and girls who are members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club.

Johnny Sullivan, youthful Hyde Park accordian player and a Secret Agent, will be on hand to entertain, as he has over the radio, and there will be songs, dances and other features by club-member entertainers.

There will be clowns and Henry McLellan with his high school horse, "Sparky," a Punch and Judy Show, a team of tumblers and pyramid builders from the Norfolk House Center, 40 monkeys and Miss Vallarie Carlton, girl of the golden voice from the Normandie ballroom, and many other features.

Fred Roth of the Waldorf System at Norumbega Park and President John J. Curry have agreed to sell ice cream cones, hot frankfurters, sandwiches and cold drinks for half price—that is, five cents each.

And should it rain on Saturday, the circus and field day will be put over until Sunday, with the same arrangements holding.

In addition to members being admitted free if they show their membership cards and their badges, you get a set of tickets for free rides on the concessions.

On these rides, you may be lucky enough to find envelopes with Treasure Certificates, entitling you to prize awards. There will be hundreds of these prizes, like the Easter Egg Hunt at Franklin Park.

If you are not yet a member of the Secret Agent X-9 Club, just look on the comic page of this issue of the Boston Evening American, follow the directions and you may be able to get your credentials in time for the big party.

ELY SIGNS PAY BOOST BILL

Authority to restore to city and county employes a third of the pay cuts taken away from them a year ago was given to Mayor Mansfield in a bill signed by Governor Ely.

The new bill, recently passed by both branches of the legislature, is not mandatory. The Mayor recently issued a warning that the tax rate would jump to $40 or $45 a year if he were forced to return $5,000,000 to the 21,000 workers now receiving five to 15 per cent reductions in their pay envelopes.

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $100 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $100 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $50 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $15 for the next best; $10 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 25 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

GIRL IN THE FAMILY -:- A Choice Between Marriage for Love or Loyalty -:- By Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER XXIII

The eager adventurous look died out of her brother's face as it hardened. A muscle near his jaw knotted itself. "Don't be a little sap," he said. "But, Susie, what do you suppose they've been doing with all the money the Grandfather Brodericks left them?—You've heard them talk about the time when they had five servants and two electric runabouts in the family, and how Aunt Edna and Lutie used to go to New York twice a year to buy their clothes. They must have been wild with money then—and even five or six years ago we weren't poor the way we are now."

"Well, the rents at The Broderick Arms have been falling off for ons thing," Susan began, and then stopped abruptly. There was no conviction in her voice or in her mind. She realized that the decrease in the rents was very little compared to the difference between the old days of ease and plenty in the house and the lean days of the present.

"No, they had more than just the apartment, Jonn and I. They had government bonds like other things in the world. They used to talk about them but they never do any more. What I think is that they've been selling them for years. Spending everything that Grandfather left them until there's nothing left but this house and the apartment—and this place is mortgaged to the hilt. They all ought to have a guardian, if you ask me."

"But Uncle Worthy—isn't he supposed to be their trustee or something like that?" asked Susan who, like the majority of women, knew practically nothing about business.

"He's always handled the estate."

"Yep," said John with sarcasm sharpening his tone. "He has. With the result that we have a roomer in the house instead of a cook and are trying to rent our garage instead of keeping a car of our own in it. You know, Susie, there's a saying that goes something like this—History is filled with the sound of wooden shoes climbing up the stairs and satin slippers coming down.' Well, I think the Brodericks' satin slippers are coming down in a hurry these days. This house will be a boarding house yet."

STAYS NEAR ALLEN

That was what had happened to the Taylor house in the next block when old Mr. Stuyvesant Taylor died, Susan remembered. The Van Dorn house, around the corner on Stillwell street, had become a music school when the Van Dorns moved out of it to take possession of their new house in Chagrin Valley, and almost all of the other proud old mansions in the neighborhood had been torn down to make room for two-story business blocks or garages or four-family houses.

"If I go to Omaha, Uncle Worthy will rent my room, I imagine, and he'll do the same thing with Dad's when he moves all of his things over to Mrs. Hopper's place." John's voice ran on in the quiet room. (None of them ever called the new Mrs. Morris Broderick anything but "Mrs. Hopper.") "Oh, well, I suppose it's none of my business. When I tried to suggest to Uncle Worthy the other day that he sell the house or lease the land for a factory site, he shut me up . . . Let's go over to the Cullens and see what's doing, Susie."

But for once the Cullens' house had no lure for Susan. Upstairs, behind the closed solid-walnut door of the front bedroom, Allen was busy with his law books. And so long as he was there her old family house was the only place on earth where she wanted to be.

Early Monday morning Aunt Edna took the 1901 edition of the Social Register down from its place on the parlor book shelves and began to check off names for Susan's wedding invitations.

"Goodness gracious, Edna! Why do that now?" Lutie wanted to know. "There won't be any wedding for five or six months! I thought we were all going to pitch in and do the housework this morning."

"Well, I'm going to check off these names now," Aunt Edna declared, thrusting out her lower lip determinedly. "June isn't so very far away and there are all sorts of things to be done before then, and I'm going to get at them as I think of them. Some day we'll have to see about having some new covers made for all the old furniture in this house, and I'd like to have a new dress made for the wedding. I'd thought of gray chiffon, or perhaps a pansy-purple, but chiffon always makes me look as big as an elephant—" She talked on and on, verbally spending hundreds of dollars in preparation for Susan's wedding to Wallace.

"She'll spend hours on that nonsense, just to get out of doing any work—and she'll leave even her bed for us to make, you'll see!" Lutie remarked sourly to Susan as the two of them went around the house, dusting, running the carpet sweeper over the beautiful old rugs, collecting the part of the laundry that was to be sent out to the Imperial Wet Wash, putting the rest of it to soak in the wash tubs in the basement. "She won't do any more work from now on than she did when we had Anna. She says her feet hurt, but so do mine and I'm not complaining."

LUTIE FEELS BETTER

By Tuesday Lutie had lost almost all of her energy for housework, but her good disposition had returned.

"The work isn't so dreadful hard after all," she assured Susan in her accustomed cheerful manner as she walked around the lower floor of the house flirting a feather duster at the furniture and brisk-a-brac and stirring up a great deal of dust. She let Susan make all the beds alone, and when it was time to go down into the basement and wash the clothes that had been soaking the day before, she was having a morning conversation with her friend, Jessie Bunts, over the telephone. Susan went down alone.

An hour later she came to the head of the stairs that led down to the basement and called down to Susan, "I think I'd better run up here to answer the 'phone and the doorbell, don't you, Susan Biddie? It'll soon be time for me to start lunch I o—"

But when Susan came up into the kitchen a half hour later the thing had been done toward preparing lunch. The stove was cold, and on the bare polished mahogany of the dining room table a corded white silk dress was spread out. Beside it, on a sheet of tissue paper, stood a pair of white kid slippers with bright paste buckles. From them rose a dry, dusty odor of age and orris root.

"Your grandmother was married in these, Susan," Aunt Edna waved her short plump hands over it. Lutie and I thought you'd like to have it made over for your own wedding dress. It's so smart, I think, to wear bridal things that have been in one's own family for a long time.

"I never knew what your own mother wore at her wedding, for I wasn't there," she wound up with a sniff and a twitching of her nostrils, as if she were proud of the fact that she had not been there.

"Well, whatever she wore, you may be sure she was the loveliest bride that any Brodericx ever married," Susan answered quietly, and with that she went out into the garden to get the lunch ready.

On Wednesday morning Lutie went to a meeting of the Current Topics Club, which met every other Wednesday at 11 o'clock in the ballroom of the Union Club downtown. The members of it were the wealthiest and most prominent women of the town, and Lutie had joined it 25 years before when the Broderick's were among the "in-laws" Uncle Worthy called "the people of the city."

"And what do you think a little bird told me today!" she asked coyly of Susan when she came home at 6 o'clock and sat down at the kitchen table, still wearing her hat and coat, and fanned herself dramatically of the gasoline with which she had cleaned her white kid gloves. "That Wallace was engaged to Eleanor Kendall once upon a time!—and quite wild about her, too! Eleanor Kendall!"

"Very odd that Mrs. Kendall didn't mention it to us when she was here on Christmas day," remarked Uncle Worthy, turning a doubting eye upon Lutie as if he were saying, "Important if true," to himself.

GOSSIP REPEATED

"Well, odd or not, the fact is that Wallace and Eleanor were engaged," declared Lutie and dropped a bit of sausage gravy on the front of her dress in her excitement and stopped for a moment to rub the spot with her napkin. "She threw him down when she went out to Akron on a visit and fell in love with the man that she married . . . Jessie Bunts told me the whole sory this morning. They were engaged only a week or two—"

"Jessie Bunts!" Aunt Edna's tone scorned Jessie Bunts and all her works. "If it were true Jessie Bunts would have told us all about it on Christmas day. She never misses a chance to make people feel uncomfortable and take them down a peg or two."

Powder Brush Gives Face Natural Tint

Satin-Smooth Skin Can Be Acquired With Patience

By Juliet Shelby

THE FASTIDIOUS beauty knows all the little tricks of making-up and uses them. The glamour that she radiates exists only because she takes the time and trouble to make herself alluring. She was not born with that faultless loveliness you so envy. But she does go about her daily toilette with patience, and no little detail escapes her.

One such beauty takes five minutes to powder her face. But when she has finished, her skin is satin-smooth and has that delicate luminance that compels one to look at it. I asked her how she succeeded in getting the powder on so evenly, so perfectly blended to her natural skin tone. Laughingly she admitted it was a trick. "But I'll let you see how I do it," she said. "I think so many of your readers should know how to put powder on correctly."

I held her to her promise and one day watched her. Her skin was tanned, a lovely soft tan, and she had wisely chosen a foundation cream and powder that blended with it. After applying the foundation cream with lovely swift movements she covered her skin with a thick layer of powder, using a large down puff. From her hairline to the base of her throat, over her eyelids and under her chin, she powdered.

"Now for the trick," she said "I use this and I cannot understand why any woman gets along without one." She held up a dainty, soft brush. With it she brushed off the powder with light upward strokes, leaving on just enough to assure a uniform coverage.

"I'm simply mad about it," she confessed, "in fact, as mad about it that I use one for powder rouge too."

In three smart pats she put rouge on each cheek and then was in any and all with her rouge brush distributed it as she wanted it.

"I always cover my rouge with powder and brush it off again," she continued. "It bleds with the powder and appears to be my natural coloring."

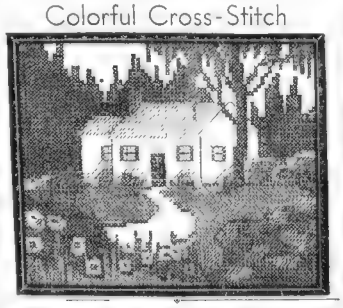
I waited and watched her shadow her eyes and touch up her lashes and brows with mascara. But my interest had dropped when she put down her brushes. Such a simple little procedure that took only a few minutes' time, but accomplished so much beauty!

On my way home I bought a brush. And now I wonder, as brave as she, how any woman can powder her face without.

If you would see the name of this special powder brand and where it can be bought, telephone to Janet Shelby, Lib. 4000, or if you prefer write and send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston American, Boston.

NOTHING IS such a test of chic as a satin-smooth skin—so artfully powdered that it gives the illusion of silken transparency. If you want to really dramatize your beauty, in much the same fashion as does Toby Wing, use a dainty, soft powder brush, and see how cosmetics become one with your skin.

Colorful Cross-Stitch



An embroidered pottair is always fun to do and when it is in cross-stitch it is both so. Easy to do, the trees and flowers grow quickly in their gay colors. The crosses are the popular six to the inch. The parts of the picture that are white in the illustration may be left without embroidery or filled out with cross-stitch if preferred. The design which measures 11x13½ inches also is most effective for use on a pillow; it is easy to carry out in color for these are indicated by markings on the design make it necessary to follow a color chart.

HERE'S HELP FOR YOU!

IF YOU must be on the job every day, here's a medicine you ought to know about. Little chocolate coated tablets which bring welcome relief from "women's troubles." Purse size, 50 cents.

"I am 27 and a textile winder in the mill. I had cramps so bad that I had to cry many times. I used to stay in bed two days a month. Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets helped me wonderfully. For the first time in my life I do not suffer. I can work all the time now and feel strong. I used to be rundown and nervous and couldn't eat. Now I eat more than I ever did". — Mrs. Bennie Coates, 1963 Terrace Street, Muskegon, Mich.

"I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine to everyone. I was rundown and tired and had pains in my stomach and was irregular. Your Tablets proved wonders to me."— Mrs. Fred Backmann, 1023 So. 2nd Street, La Crosse, Wisconsin.

Try this medicine yourself. You will be pleased with the results!

Treatment for Circles Under the Eyes

Question: I am a woman of thirty-four and I have deep, dark circles under my eyes. I have also noticed that crow's feet are beginning to appear on my face. Can you advise me?

A. H.Canton

Answer: I suggest that you cleanse your skin with soap and water every night. Use a little cream around your eyes and on your throat. This will help prevent the crow's feet from forming about your eyes. Darkness under the eyes may be caused by lack of rest and sleep, and poor circulation. Try using a lotion in the morning instead of a powder base. It will perhaps hold the powder better.

Crude Oil for Hair

Question: Can you tell me something of the "Crude Oil Treatment?" Where is this oil obtained and how is it applied?

B. S. W., Dedham.

Answer: Crude oil can be bought at a grocery or drug store. Tell them what you want it for in using this on your hair, it is necessary to use only a little, and you must massage it well into the scalp with the fingertips. Be sure that every part of the scalp is covered. Cover the head with a hot towel and let the oil remain on as long as convenient. Be very thorough with your shampoo, washing in several waters.

A tar soap shampoo is good, especially if your hair is dark. If it's light, use an olive-castile shampoo. Rinse well, putting a little vinegar in the last water. Dry in the sun and air.

Almond Meal Wash

Question: I would appreciate having the directions for making the almond meal wash for a dry skin. What treatment would you suggest for a dry, chapped skin.

B. D., Brookline.

Answer: This wash is made from castile shavings and almond meal, to which add a little water and cook to a jelly-like consistency. Apply it to the face and allow it to remain on a little while; remove with warm water followed by cold. You can make enough of this wash to last for a few washings if you keep it in a covered glass jar. You should guard your face from exposure to wind and sun as much as possible, and it would also help for you to rub a good foundation cream into your skin to protect it before you apply makeup.

Given in Marriage

—By Adele Garrison—

Madge Is Certain That Keeping Avis Arlen Away From the Farmhouse Is Only Way to Avoid Complications

CHAPTER 62

I SUPPOSE my face betrayed my astonished chagrin at hearing my mother-in-law's voice over the telephone, for Hugh leaned toward me and his lips formed the words "What is it?" But I put up my hand in a quick agitated signal for silence, and he sank back in his chair while I racked my brain for answers to the searching quiz I knew was coming.

"It is I, Margaret, mother," I said, instinctively avoiding the diminutive Madge, which she never has used in all the years of my marriage, though no other person save my father calls me by the longer, more dignified cognomen. But the ruse availed me nothing. Her voice was testy with annoyance when she spoke again.

"What are you doing away from home with that ankle? Where are you? Why are you telephoning?"

CAPTIOUS MOTHER GRAHAM

I might have been a child of ten, I told myself grimly, but I am well used to my mother-in-law's manner, and realize that it is but a veneer over sterling qualities, a kind heart and a very real affection for me. Unless my nerves are very much frazzled at the edges I never resent anything she says, and, with the fear of upsetting her during this tense time of preparation for the marriage strong upon me, I pitched my voice to an extremely conciliatory note.

"I took Mrs. Ticer down the road to Sag Harbor to telephone," I equivocated. "The Bridgehampton telephones were out on account of a fire, and we couldn't get the operator over ours before we left."

"She probably was asleep, or talking with her best beau," my mother-in-law commented acridly. The telephone is all right now."

"So I see," I returned cheerfully. "That's the reason I tried the phone just now, because I thought it might not be permanently out of commission."

"Of course not," she snapped "but I'd like to know why you thought it was necessary for you to play chauffeur to Mrs. Ticer Weren't there enough men in the house?"

"Preening Her Feathers"

"Yes, mother, dear, you know how busy everybody is today Really I am the only useless one You are all so insistent that I shall not use my ankle that I feel like a fifth wheel, as if I were needed at all."

My mother-in-law gave a sniff perfectly audible over the telephone.

"Why should you be needed?" she demanded. "I arranged parties and weddings before you were born, and many times since The weddings of Mary's mother and of her aunt Harriet were and executed every bit of them. I really think I am capable of carrying out the details of my own granddaughter's wedding beautiful functions, and I planned even if you are laid up with a lame ankle."

"I know you are," I said soothingly. "Everyone is remarking how wonderful you are managing things."

I could almost see her "preen her feathers."

"Well! Nothing is dragging," she admitted, and then she put a question which I felt had some purpose behind it.

"How do you feel?"

"Very well, indeed, thank you"

"Then I wonder why you couldn't keep on going to Southampton and see about those boxes for the cake. We ought to have a dozen more. It seems Mary has promised Marion some for her friends at school to sleep on—you know how foolish girls are— and we won't have enough boxes"

They'll probably tell you that they can't get them at this late hour, but don't take 'no' for an answer. They can get them all right, especially if you tell them you'll pay for any telephone messages necessary, and for a messenger to bring them over. So don't let them get out of it."

"I'll do my best," I promised meekly, remembering the story of the club reporter who reported to his city editor that he had been kicked down the steps of a house where he had been sent to get a story.

"Go right back," the city editor thundered, "and tell them to give you that story. I'll show them they can't bluff me."

OFF TO MEET AVIS

"Best, fiddlesticks!" my mother-in-law commanded. "You get those boxes."

"All right," I agreed, thankful that I had put on my heavy motoring coat and taken my purse with me when I took Mrs. Ticer to The Larches to telephone. "I'll take Mrs. Ticer home and then go on to Southampton."

"Don't take time to stop at the house," my mother-in-law directed. "There's nothing there for you to do and the sooner you see about those cakes the better. Every minute is precious now"

"Very well, I'll attend to everything. And—it's so nice I think I'll drive on to that Hampton Bays shop and see about a hat."

"That means you'll be gone all the afternoon," my mother-in-law said shrewdly. "But there's nothing for you to do around here, and the air will probably do you good. But, remember, don't take any nonsense from those people about those boxes! Good-by."

The receiver clicked, and I hung up my own with a smile at Hugh, half rueful, half relieved. The way of the transgressor has just been unexpectedly made easy," I told him.

DIET IN HASTE, REPENT IN RENO

Crossness and Hunger Are Partners

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

THE DOTING DAD of the dieting Dollar Princess, Barbara Hutton Mdivani, has offered an original and plausible explanation of the much-headlined hiatus in her happiness His seems to think that his Barbara got all hungry and cross on account of reducing not wisely but too well.

Son-in-law Alexis told him:

"Barbara is improving daily, but she weighs only 100 pounds now, which worries me. On her reducing diet, she ate hardly anything for 20 days after we returned from China"

And Barbara's Dad declared

"This diet business has evidently done Barbara a great harm. After I have talked things over with her I hope all this foolishness will be ended."

MDIVANI MIX-UP

The Mdivani mix-up must serve as a rueful reminder to more than one good American husband of his sufferings while his wife tries out her latest system of sylph-determination. Among these is on a diet he is on pins and needles. His is more or less the role of the early Christian martyrs on whom Roman arena-managers turned loose lions and tigers unfed for days beforehand. Only he is not eaten up all at once — he merely has his head snapped off a dozen times a day by his ravenously bad-tempered mate.

The woman who "watches her scales" so often forgets to watch her temper at the same time She starves herself savage. From fat and jolly, she turns thin and sour. Beware of her "lean and hungry look!" such women are as dangerous as Cassius ever was!

At the height of the dieting craze among her countrywomen, we heard Geraldine Farrar express her outspoken sympathy for her countrymen! Gerry made it clear that women who go on one of those god-awful diets have only themselves to blame if their husbands go on the loose. She said

"If a man knows that when he comes home to dinner he will see his wife sitting gloomily in front of one lamb chop and one slice of pineapple well, I for one don't blame him for going elsewhere"

There are slow but sane, safe and scientific reducing methods any wise doctor will tell you. It's the intelligent woman who chooses one of these methods in planning an anti-corpulence campaign—

From One Dawn to Another You May Be a Sailor Girl

By Annice Brink

NO ONE ever gets tired of breathing in a salty, tangy breeze Perhaps that is why even fashion writers who have been hearing all about the nautical influence since mid-winter don't get tired of singing its praises, and get each clever new interpretation with a fresh volley of "Hurrahs!"

Miss Nancy Nelson, daughter of Mrs. E. G. Scoville, models for us one according-to-Hoyle outfit for sports, and another sublimated version for the dance floor. Since the two ensembles are going to be a part of it, in this way we give an advance peek at glamorous doings at the Riviera. Old Silver Beach, when debutante mandeguin will swing down the runway, showing summer fashions, on June 21.

Jersey is always a welcome fabric for sea-wear, whether on a yacht or in a rowboat, and in that two-piece version it will be the love of many a wardrobe, or summer dances, white and navy are an important and refreshing combination, and when linen and the sail influence are included—well, you have just about everything!

If you would like to know where the yachting suit and cap or the evening ensemble may be purchased in Boston, phone Annice Brink, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope

A YACHTING suit of white jersey in two pieces has its own cap to match, with a pennant flying in a spanking breeze. Miss Nancy Nelson, a charming and talented post-debutante, models the sea-inspired outfits from a Boston shop, which will be shown soon at an ultra-smart fashion show.

PERHAPS even more delightful than in the sports outfits, the nautical influence is found also in clever new evening frocks. Miss Nelson shows a brave white and navy linen dance frock with a contrasting jacket. Bands of blue outline the sailor collar and the crisp huge bow.

New Sheers Flattering

By MARIAN MARTIN

The design for a sheer fabric must be something more than just a nice looking gown—it must have plenty of material in it. The least suggestion of skimpiness is simply fatal to the success of a frock of this kind That is one reason why this model is such a good choice for chiffon or voile. Of course, that is only one reason—others are that it is vastly becoming and extremely flattering to its wearer The ea-

Pandora Tells You

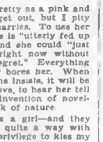
DEAR PANDORA:

I'm old enough to brag about my years and I'm young enough to be thrilled with the joy of living every morning I awake. You'll pardon this litany of I, me and my feelings but the more I hear of ennused young people the less able am I to contain myself.

My granddaughter is a lovely thing, pretty as a pink and smart as all get out, but I pity the man she marries. To use her own words, she is "utterly fed up with living" and she could "just up and quit right now without the slightest regret." Everything and everybody bores her. When she marries, she insists, it will be for money. Love, to hear her tell it, is just an invention of novelists and a trick of nature

When I was a girl—and they tell me I had quite a way with me—it was a privilege to kiss my hand But my granddaughter—well, I must say she plays no favorites. She thinks nothing of strolling in when I'm having my early morning coffee in the breakfast room, mind you, with any one of a dozen of her beaux liberally incarnadined with the imprint of her heavily lipsticked kisses. No finesse, I tell her. How can she ever expect to intrigue a man's imagination with her casual caresses dispensed in such wholesale fashion."

GRAN, Newport



DEAR GRAN

Isn't it the truth but who are we to attempt to interfere with the swing of the old pendulum? In your day, you wise and witty lady, you will admit that the general antimacassar atmosphere of stand-offishness was a touch suffocating, not to say darn aggravating Gradually, the swing has been in the opposite direction until now we have a rather alarming lack of restraint and good manners. Very disgustful of course, but at the same time a rather wholesome sign and a promise of better days and finer citizens. I can hardly wait can you?

CULINARY HONORS FOR HUBBY'S FISH

Be Ready to Blend a Subtle Sauce to Bring Out All Flavor of Catch

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Wednesday morning broadcast over station WAAB

Now that the season is open, the wife of a fisherman must stand ready at a moment's notice to accept with pleasure any or all of the offerings of his rod. Sometimes it-means well ordered plans must be laid aside, but the [illegible] Pomp over the fish Add 1 tbsp melted butter to ¼ cup dried breadcrumbs and sprinkle over the fish Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F) for about 25 minutes

FISH or HADDOCK

Wash one medium sized fish carefully, dry, sprinkle with salt and pepper stuff, sew up with twine and put in a pan, dredge [illegible] a pan [illegible] and place 6 strips of bacon over the [illegible] Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) for about 1 hour. Serve with tomato sauce made by adding a small amount of flour to 1 small can cream of tomato soup. Cook [illegible]

BAKED FISH WITH TARTAR SAUCE

Wash and dry the trout or other fish carefully. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge lightly with flour. Place 6 strips of bacon over the [illegible] surround with about ½ cupful water. Bake [illegible] using 1 tbsp butter and 1 cup water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F) for about 1 hour. The fish may be cut into individual servings or baked in one large piece. Serve with tartar sauce made by mixing ¾ cup sandwich spread with 1-3 cup of mayonnaise.

FISH STUFFING

Combine 2 cups dry bread crumbs, ¼ cup melted butter, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. chopped parsley, pepper to taste, few drops onion juice and 1 tbsp. chopped gherkins, and mix thoroughly. This makes a dry crumbly stuffing.

BAKED FISH WITH MUSTARD SAUCE

Cut 1½ lbs. fillet of haddock or other fish into 6 servings and season lightly with salt and pepper. Lay in shallow, well greased baking pan. Make a sauce as follows

Melt 1 tbsp. butter, add 1 tbsp. flour and blend well Add 1 cup boiling water, 1 tbsp. lemon juice and 1 tsp. prepared mustard, and [illegible] Pour over the fish Add 1 tbsp melted butter to ¼ cup dried breadcrumbs and sprinkle over the fish Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F) for about 25 minutes

Inexpert Contract Defense

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

When a contract can be defeated [illegible] and the defense is so [illegible] that the Declarer fulfills his doubled contract and scores a game and rubber, one might be pardoned for quarreling with the decision [illegible] expert who appeal to [illegible] finding partnership. However experts are that way because of the vast number of great achievements to their credit and not because they are more ordinary mortals never make mistakes.

The hand below was played in a Rubber game in the Eastern [illegible] at Crowfield this year. New York East and West had names which are known to most [illegible] throughout the United States.

West. Dealer.

	♠A973 ♡96 ◇K10 ♣Q9763
♠Q 10 8 7 6 5 4 2 ♡ 5 4 3 ◇ Q 8 6 4 ♣ A	North	♠ 2 ♡ K J 10 ◇ A 7 5 2 ♣ J 10 8 5
	♠K J 8 6 5 4 ♡ 9 3 ◇ 9 3 ♣ K J 4 2

The bidding

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	2 ♠ (1)
3 ◇	3 ♠	4 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass
Double (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) A rather risky Overcall at the range of two. South's justification is his fine distribution and the length, if not strength, of the trump suit

(2) North's decision to play defensively at a game contract is quite sound. It appears to him that an adverse game in hearts is certain, whereas the penalty played at spades should not be severe.

West has a reasonably close decision whether to double or to [illegible] It was [illegible] against the declaring partnership. However, [illegible] King either six hearts or six diamonds may be made, but West did not feel certain that they could make even five and decided that by opening his singleton Ace of clubs and thereby getting a ruff, he would defeat the opposing contract [illegible] two tricks. Hence [illegible] a penalty double [illegible] rather than the uncertainties of attempting to win the [illegible] throughout the [illegible]

[illegible] West opened the Ace of clubs and [illegible] the Dummy went down, decided to shift to diamonds. He chose as his card to lead the Queen, feeling that his partner could not be misled as to the number of cards he held in the suit, since he had supported East's diamond bid South made a very fine [illegible] not overtake in Dummy with the King, although this should not have fooled the East and West players had they been at their best. The East player not only failed to overtake the Queen with the Ace in order to give his partner an immediate ruff in clubs, but played the diamond 7. West, reading this as a command to continue the suit, led another diamond, which South ruffed. South then proceeded to draw the trumps and discarded one of his four hearts on the fifth club in Dummy Thus he fulfilled his game contract

A perfect defense would have resulted in a 500-point penalty rather than in a fulfilled doubled contract All that was necessary after the lead of the club Ace was for East to secure the lead twice.

When Dining

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1. [illegible] when eating in a restaurant I [illegible] my coat and hang it on the coat rack [illegible] where we were going to sit, which I thought was the correct thing to do. I [illegible] was the only woman who did this. We did not eat at a table, but in a booth, and a coat is quite cumbersome to sit in, and also there is the possibility of dropping food on the coat, and I thought it correct to take it off. Was this correct?

2. When dancing are the little beaded bags, usually called "After Dark bags" carried on the dance floor?

Perplexed

1. It is quite all right for you to hang your coat on the coat-rack if you wished to, but usually women do prefer to just drop and leave them where they are.

2. This is a question of choice. Often these bags aren't very comfortable or convenient to carry while you are dancing . . . but this is for you to decide.

Cochrane Shows Harris How to Do Impossible; Makes Bucky Eat Slur

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE EXECUTIVE METHOD by which Gordon Mickey Cochrane, B. U.'s patron athletic saint, has raised his Detroit Tigers from a state of kittenhood to a tusk-gnashing lord of the jungle, was described by him today as the "cut and slash" method, a simple system of toe hold slugging and journeyman pitching.

Austen Lake

Here forsooth, is a blocky, country lad, still in his early thirties and with only a few months' managerial background, driving a nondescript outfit which cost only a child's sandpail full of cash, leading the American League.

And on the other hand, here is our Bucky Harris of the Red Sox, the man whom Mickey replaced in Detroit, a man with ten years of managerial experience and in charge of the most expensive set of baseball curiosa in the game, settled near the roots of the league.

THE RACE IS NOT yet run of course. But one recalls hearing Bucky, who is a pleasant cuss and canny in baseball matters, tell how Detroit was little more than a dry husk, manned by cheerful cherubs and apple-cheeked boys. Which statement, if you recall, drew forth a hot blast from the pepperpot Cochrane, who said, "Dear sir, it will be our pleasure to sock you fore and aft, early and often."

This drew derisive gurgles and hollow haw-haws from Herr Harris, who at the moment is nibbling the frayed edges of his mustache and keeping a discreet silence.

Now, ordinarily, I do not believe a manager influences the trend of a ball club more than seven per cent at the most. In the immortal language of Heinie Wagner, who, when his 1930 Red Sox were flunking and fainting, said, "You can't psychologize with a bunch of louses."

The Birth of Cochrane's Sport Career

COCHRANE'S STRENGTH has been that he has not attempted to psychologize at all, but has merely fanned the flame of his team's fury by making himself a loving leader who does not ask more of his men than he is willing to do himself.

I have never met a man with a greater degree of competitive fire. I have seen him pour himself over with profane reproach for missing a five foot putt in a friendly game of golf, addressing himself with a quiver of scorn as a "yellow thus and so" for flinching in the clutch.

From the day I first saw him, which was as a scrawny freshman candidate with loving cup ears and a ready blush, he has seemed the ideal athletic competitor. Then in 1920, he had stood on the fringe of B. U. candidates, heels run down, shabby in a patched jersey and with the elastic gone from his pants.

That afternoon, one of the scrub team halfbacks suddenly bowed a tendon, and Dr. Charles Whelan, had turned and yelped, "One of you, any one, step in here." Cochrane, always quick on uptake, leaped into position.

The first time he carried the ball over the weedy, pebbly ground that formed B. U.'s training spot behind the Commonwealth avenue billboards, he danced a shivvery quickstep through the entire varsity and might have continued on downtown but for the brick sides of an apartment building at the other end of the field.

It was the birth of an athletic career which has lacked logic and which has astonished Cochrane as much as the rest of the sport world. He said so again today. "I've been a continuel surprise to myself."

Promise of Quaint Happenings in Garden Bowl

I AM PREDICTING that the comic character of both principals in tomorrow night's heavyweight fight at the Garden Bowl, will produce some daffy twist to add to the recent crack pot history of the prize ring.

Eccentric personalities breed goffy happenings, as in the cases where Jack Sharkey always afforded some example of hysteria, either by swooning or bursting into a splatter of tears. And here we have an ex-circus freak with a background of managerial shills, stooges and moochers, pitted again a devoted lover of nonsense for its own sweet sake.

There have, of course, been some capable performers in the guild of athletic clowns. Rabbit Maranville for example. Casey Stengel for another. But foolishness and fighting somehow make a poor blend, and I think that most of the crowd which is paying its cash to see tomorrow's brawl are drawn by the promise of some rich adventure in the line of daffiness.

WHEN THE COLLEGE crews sweep down the Hudson in the Poughkeepsie regatta Saturday, they will paddle past the presidential summer home at Krum Elbow, whose lush lawns run down to the water's edge. And the President, who once yanked an oar for a Harvard class crew, will be an interested watcher . . . Max Baer and Primo Carnera are the most "Divided" boxers in the fight business, each sharing his earnings with several other men. Baer at one time had seven managers, while Carnera had five, one of whom, Bill Duffy, is under federal glass for income tax evasion.

The Man Mountain Towers at Ring's Peak -:- Can Livermore Larruper Blast Him Down?

Towering like some colossus of old, Champion Primo Carnera stands at the peak of the ring world. It would seem that Max Baer has little chance against such a giant. But turn back the pages of ring history to the Jess Willard-Jack Dempsey fight. Willard stood 6-6½, while Dempsey was only 5-11¾. Willard weighed 259, Dempsey 190. In thecase of Baer and Carnera the champion has only about a 50-pound pull in the weight, and a five-inch adv antage in height. So it is more than a slim possibility that Baer can upset the Man Mountain tomorrow night as dempsey wrecked Willard. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Alp Banks on Left to Wear Rugged Baer Down

By Primo Carnera

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 13—I shall be trying for a knockout from the start but not in any brainless way. I will follow the sure and sound way of whipping Baer, by outboxing him, tomorrow night. If he should rush me much, he may meet a quicker fate than Sharkey d.d. I can hit as hard as anyone if the target comes to me. At long range, my left should wear him down just as it did Paulino and Loughran. In close, Baer should be rough indeed but I have yet to clinch-and-punch with anyone who has beaten me at that detail of fighting.

On paper the big thing in my favor is that I have had three battles—against Sharkey, Paulino and Loughran—since Max has fought. The best thing a fighter can do 4o keep in condition is to fight. Max hasn't been fighting I have. I believe this is a big advantage in my favor.

ALP SURE BAER READY

I do not put any credence in the reports that Baer has been neglecting his training. I give him credit for entering the ring in the best possible condition and I am prepared to beat the best Baer that Baer possibly can be. My fights with Paulino and Loughran will help me.

Of course, I have only seen Max in the ring once, the time, about a year ago, when he fought Schmeling. At that time he impressed me as being about the easiest man to whip that I have ever seen. I can land on him, make no mistake about that, and I will land hard.

I do not fear the reported wicked right which Max carries. I have prepared against this in all my workouts.

SKEPTICS SNEER

Some bitter skeptics still think my knockout of Jack Sharkey last June was not genuine, absolutely crazy though such an idea is. They sneer at me for outboxing Tommy Loughran last February, declaring that I should have knocked out the great master of defense.

They laugh (and many boed) when Paulino (who has never been knocked out) stayed fifteen rounds with me at Rome lyast October. They poke fun, saying I have "no punch"; some experts write that Carnera cannot box a lick.

Even if I annihilate this Baer American—outbox him completely as I did Paulino and Loughran within the year, or even flatten him as I did Sharkey—such a victory will be belittled because people can say that "Primo is too big," or that "Baer threw away his plate in Hollywood, at the radio 'mikes,' or in the night clubs."

But all this makes me want to win all the more. So I have trained for Baer just as faithfully as I did for Sharkey a year ago. No other heavyweight champion defended his title more than once in a year. I have had two good 15-round bouts since winning the title. There is no ring rust on the crown they talk about.

Americano Max, I believe, has only the outside accidental chance of winning my world's championship. I am as proud of that title as I am of the way Italy has honored me. So I will defend it to the very limits of my spirit and ability.

Challenger Plans Vicious Attack to Body

By Max Baer

Asbury Park, N. J., June 13—Twenty-four hours from now a dream comes true . . .

Or is shattered.

Primo Carnera has what I want, the heavyweight title. It's up to me to take it away from him. And that's my plan of battle. That's what I expect to talk about—how I expect to beat Carnera. It's hard to put into words.

I'm confident I can do it. It not sheer brass, the braggart coming to the surface. I've seen Da Preem in action, I've even tussled with him in the ring. So I have some idea of his strength and ability.

But can he take it?

BODY ATTACK PLANNED

My right will not be tied to my side either. It will follow my left and to the same general vicinity. Only the right will pound Preem's heart section.

That's my main plan of battle—as vicious a body attack as I can muster.

For more than a year I've been training old "Dynamite" for the 15 round test. Now it is as strong and powerful as the right that dumped Schmeling. And I have equal confidence in it.

Punching is next. During my training, Jack Dempsey, who always has been my friend, insisted that slugging and not boxing would decide the fight. Standing just outside the ring when I boxed, he would yell

"Keep crowding him, Max! Keep throwing punches!"

I'll be hearing him at the ringside. He won't be in my corner but Dempsey's words will go burning through my brain. I'll have to crowd Carnera and force him to keep punching, instead of pulling and mauling.

CARNERA A BOXER

Carnera has been schooled as a boxer. His muscles are such he can only get knockout force behind one wallop—a right uppercut. His handlers have spent years teaching him a left, and how to advance upon and wear down an opponent by throwing his tremendous poundage on an antagonist's shoulders and head.

I'm strong myself. Before I was graduated from grammer school, I could pick up a quarter—I bet and heave it over my shoulder. I think I can exert that muscling I have to. But with all his grappling, the Champ will have to open up when I nail him.

I'm counting on ol' "Dynamite" to turn the trick inside of ten rounds. It's but a question of "Can Carnera take it? And for how long."

I'm sure there will be a new heavyweight champion of the world in twenty-four hours.

Champ's Second Serving 4-Month Term in Jail

By Jack Conway

New York, June 13—Primo Carnera today planned to send a personal appeal to Federal Judge Bonde asking him to release Billy Duffy, his American manager, from jail so that he can second him against Max Baer in their 15-round world championship bout at the Garden Bowl on Long Island tomorrow night.

Duffy is serving a four months term in the federal jail here for failure to file an income tax return. He attorneys have found the efforts to get him released.

"I think if I tell the Judge how much I need Billy Duffy tomorrow night he will let him out of jail for a few hours," Carnera told me today. "Billy's lawyers cannot get him out of jail, and maybe the Judge will listen to me.

"I am in a strange country, and have always looked to Duffy for advice during my bouts. His presence in my corner means a great deal to me. He planned the fight that enabled me to lick Sharkey.

"They tell me it was Duffy who showed Dempsey how to beat Sharkey. I would feel much easier in my mind if I knew he was in charge of my corner tomorrow night. I would then be sure nothing would go wrong.

"When you are out there fighting, you feel better when you have complete confidence in your chief second.

"Louis Soresi is my manager of record, and a fine gentleman, but this prize fight business is new to him. He is a banker and a lawyer and takes good care of my money. I would like to have Billy Duffy take charge of my fighting.

"I have not made a single move in my training without first consulting Duffy. He has been in jail. I would like to have had him in my camp. Things then would have gone along more smoothly. He could have taken many cares off my shoulders."

If Carnera's appeal fails, Jack Dempsey may go to Judge Bonde in behalf of Duffy. Although Dempsey is lined up with the Baer camp Duffy has been his friend of many years standing. He would not hesitate to do anything that would help Duffy in his present predicament. He would sacrifice his own interests if necessary.

PURSE TIED UP

It is a pathetic sight to watch the fighting Carnera on the eve of the title bout and to listen to him as he tells of his financial troubles.

Court proceedings have already been instituted to tie up Carnera's end of the purse. They have been started by assignees of an English girl who recovered a $15,000 judgment against Primo.

Under his contract with the Garden, Carnera revealed to me today, he will get 25 per cent of the gate after the Mike Farrell first expenses be per cent off the top receipts. This will give him about 34 per cent of the total taken in, which is 9 per cent less than Jack Sharkey received for his title bout with Primo a year ago. Baer will get 20 per cent after the first $60,000 and 25 per cent after he has collected Jack Dempsey, outside of 2 per cent of the Baer purse, which will leave Max with 12½ per cent to divide with Ancil Hoffman, and he has two other managers.

Carnera is a 6 to 5 favorite in the betting in the rival heavyweights' war for the daffiest of the fight connection.

The boxing commission's doctors have reported that Carnera's cold has settled in his throat and that while he is fit to box he is far from being in top per cent condition.

I would have put this down under "Boo" if I had not talked with Primo in the room in his training camp the other day. The cold in his throat has caused some hoarseness.

BAER BRAGGING

Primo's illness does not bother his fighting self. He still thinks he will lick Baer as easily. He figures Baer's only chance of winning will be to put the fear of K. O. into Max; poor condition will not interest him in a long bout.

Baer's confidence picked up when he was informed of Carnera's throat infection. He is more cocky than ever, and is telling the world he will win by a knockout.

St. Louis, June 13—A boaster naturally puts himself forever on the spot. Braggarts who can make good on their boasts are few an i far between in any line but more especially sport.

Probably no athletes ever put themselves on the spot as has the Deans, the famous me and I brothers of the St. Louis Cardinals.

When [illegible] they [illegible] would win 4 games between [illegible] this year. That [illegible] astounded every team in the league. Every pitcher determined to beat down particularly hard whenever he faced one of the Deans.

Forty-five between them eh? Why, twice that many would not be the flag for the Cards. Where d [illegible] that dizzy pair get off to, thinking they could show up the rest of the league?

Well as Al Smith used to say, let's take a look at the record. The Cardinals have won 30 games and of this number the Dizzy Deans have accounted for exactly half between them.

Paul, the younger and less talkative of the pair, won his seventh straight yesterday, when he took [illegible] the Braves [illegible] against the same Dean [illegible] For Paul was two of these are credited. Legionaires Fired Salute to Muldoon

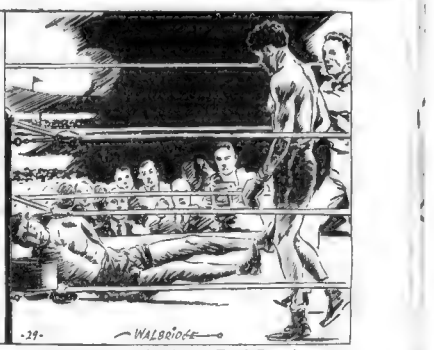
Der Maxie's Right Staggered Baer



Baer Stopped Schmeling in Tenth Round

Celebrities were on hand to see Baer battle Schmeling. Gene Tunney, the retired champion, occupied a prominent place. Jack Dempsey, relaxed for the first time since the promotion campaign, sat near Baer's corner. Also up close were Jack Sharkey, the heavyweight champion, and Primo Carnera, the challenger. Sharkey and Primo were scheduled to battle on the night of June 29. Both intent on the drama about to unfold under those hot arc lights, did either give thought one would be stretched out by a right uppercut, the other the new wearer of the crown?

The ring lights beat down relentlessly. Mike Cantwell and Ancil Hoffman adjusted Baer's gloves. In the other corner Joe Jacobs supervised the preparing of Schmeling.

It had been programed to pay tribute to the memory of the late William Muldoon, the Old Roman, who for years had been member of the New York boxing commission. A squad of American Legionaires came into the ring, battle flags and all, to fire a salute, much to Schmeling's discomfiture. The rattle of musketry didn't seem to worry Baer at all.

The ring was cleared. The timekeeper banged the gong. Out of his corner came Schmeling. On his toes, he advanced in little mincing steps. With a nervous grin Baer came forth cautiously. He awaited the bombardment which was to begin almost immediately. They slugged away, with little advantage to either. Suddenly Schmeling shifted, lashed out with a fast and terrific right cross that parked solidly on Baer's nose. The punch drove Baer staggering into the ropes close to his own corner. This was as close as Schmeling was to come at knockout, if it may be assumed the hard-headed Livermore boy was close to knockout then.

The punch that didn't beat down Baer, probably beat Schmeling. He began to wilt under the terrific heat and pace and when he lashed out with another terrific right hander to Baer's body, Max started his unstirring rallies.

In the tenth round everybody but Schmeling saw Baer telegraph a good old-fashioned haymaker. It started from 'way back there in right field where Babe Ruth stands. The punch caught Schmeling flush on the jaw. Der Maxie fell hard, on the side of his hip and rolled over on his face. He got up to wander drunkenly along the ropes. Baer closed in for another volley of punches, but Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the fight.

Baer had knocked out Schmeling. People were not talking about Sharkey and Carnera fighting on June 29—they were talking about Max Baer of Livermore, California.

WASHINGTON CREW REGISTERS FASTEST TIME IN TRIAL SPIN

FROSH CREW SETS NEW MARK FOR TWO MILES

By Associated Press

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. June 13—Washington crew, one of two of rival crews entered today in the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta Saturd.

The Huskies conquerors of California in the event of eight-oared shells, paddled the two miles in the fastest time ever registered during preliminary trials.

Rowing at a rate of 36 strokes per minute, the Washington crew covered the course in 10 minutes 7 seconds, 36 seconds faster than California's time last Saturday.

The Washington freshmen were given the impression of speeding, as the two crews, with their bows about even at the start, took the lead at the 1-4 mile mark. They represented the fastest pulling up to the mile mark for freshmen of 1930 were equal in 9 11 3-5

Cornell's 1st crew went the fastest mile during the race in 4 52 1-5 and Syracuse was clocked a mile in approximately 20 minutes. Navy's first varsity was an easy paddle down the course and California, Penn and Columbia crews were out for records only.

BUSINESS IS OF 'SPOTTY' CHARACTER

Government Doles Play Big Part in Employment

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics of New York University.

New York, June 13—We are now in a fair way to end up the year with a recession as reflected in May business. Regardless of new deals, or lack of them, we are in a spotty condition.

We find that average daily purchase rate for the country as a whole declined 7 per cent from 77 in April to 71 in May. (These figures represent physical volume of the average for 1923-25.)

What we will say in the addition of the new deals is that people were at least 15 per cent more employed last year than they are now, and that the purchasing power of the average man's pay check was 6 per cent greater.

The chief "spotty" character of business is emphasized by the fact that New England and Pacific Coast sales were about the same as last year, while Dallas, Atlanta and Richmond sales ran 21 to 24 per cent high after reflecting government dole.

We note that one explanation of the drop in retail sales is found in a decline in factory employment.

We do not yet have figures for the entire country, but the report for New York State is in and the backwardness of the level of lumber and automobile industries explains the trend—to say nothing of cotton, etc.

In New York factory employment fell 1.7 per cent which is 3.5 per cent more than was to be expected for the season. The adjusted figure is now 77.4 per cent of the 1923-25 average against 78.1 per cent in April.

These facts together with the drop in ... likely to ... consumer purchasing power and affect retail trade unfavorably.

Lumber ... about the weakest buying is seen in the decline in automobile sales and production. Not only did the country as a whole counties fall off but General Motors sales in May made a poor showing.

The big company's low sales in number of cars, suffered an unusual decline in May. Furthermore the sales to domestic dealers were unusually high in comparison with the sales made by a quantity ... usually large for the month. These inventories have grown for five months in succession as they did in 1929.

Advance estimates of May automobile production indicate a sharp slump. Average daily output, adjusted, seems likely to have been about 80 per cent of the average of 1921-27 against 102 per cent in April.

Iron and steel production, however, gained largely in May steel ingot production rose to about 70 per cent of the 23 normal, and per cent against to about 83 per cent.

Two facts confront us in considering this iron and steel spurt. One is the anticipatory orders to forestall strikes and price markup. The other is the fact that production was high compared with shipments. Thus the increased steel making activity is likely to be temporary, because such anticipatory buying will end soon and because stocks are accumulating.

I would estimate that May steel production was something like 20 per cent in excess of shipments during the month.

Finally, my July line shows another index which indicates that products have been pressing on the market and the country is an extent greater than the demand will stand. This barometer now stands at the 1927 ... against 104 for January.

On the whole, therefore, May was a reactionary month—as the stock market rightly foretold. It looks as if the administration may have to do some more "pump priming."

The most encouraging fact was the large increase in May building permits. A large part of the gain was occasioned by two office buildings in New York city, but outside New York there was also some gain, although May normally shows a decrease.

Hupp Motor Car Reduces Prices

Detroit, June 13—Hupp Motor Car Corp. has made a reduction of $100 to $177 on its models, bringing the price to $795. The coupe, the only other body type in the series, remains unchanged.

A new deluxe line in the 417 series has been announced priced at $845, the former price of the standard car.

STOCKS HIGHER AT CLOSE OF MARKET

New York, June 13—Stocks continued to rise today along the road to higher prices today as hopes of a "summer market" appeared to be growing in the ranks of the more optimistic speculators.

While the activity did not stand anything like that of a "Bull" movement, many issues advanced fractionally to a point or more and most traders did not seem in any hurry to take profits.

The strength of commodities was considered the most influential factor in the recent rise in equities. Grains advanced a cent or more a bushel, but dropped back after realizing profits.

Cotton moved forward, as did Silver, Rubber, Copper, Hides and Sugar futures. Bonds behaved well and the dollar edged a bit higher in Foreign Exchange dealings. The British pound was rather heavy.

A State recommendation for the appropriation of $35,000 for a special investigation of munitions manufacturing profits did not seem to have any particular effect on stocks of this group. Some of the building issues reflected hopes of expanded business when the Housing Bill is passed.

A meeting of the directors of the American Iron & Steel Institute was taken as an indication that the strike problem may be nearer a solution. The proceedings of the union at Pittsburgh tomorrow is expected to decide whether the general walkout in the industry will take place Saturday.

For the first time in some weeks Dun & Bradstreet reported an increase in business failures. The total for the week ended June 7, was 239 compared with 216 in the five-day week preceding. Retail defaults rose to 145 against 124 a week earlier. There were two less failures, however, in the manufacturing division.

Stocks moved forward moderately in the first hour of trading with only narrow changes appearing in leaders. Closed shares were generally firm with U. S. Steel common advancing a major fraction while the preferred showed a gain of more than a point.

Rail issues were strong with Atchison and Atlantic Coast Line recording gains of a point or more. Delaware Lackawanna was a major fraction higher.

Quotations held around their best levels during the second hour and some additional buying developed in scattered specialties. National Lead which rose sharply yesterday added 2 more points on a small transfer.

Gains of a point or more were recorded by American Can, Public Service of New Jersey and du Pont.

In the fourth hour shares of Johns-Manville and National Lead got up around 2 points each, and issues of American Telephone, Du Pont and Santa Fe were nearly as high. Others, up lesser amounts, included American Can, Continental Can, Auburn, Pacific Lighting, Southern Motors, Bethlehem and U. S. Steel, International Harvester, Case, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Great Western Sugar, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Public Service of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, North American, U. S. Smelting, Kennecott and American Smelting.

Sales to 2 p. m. approximated 480,000 shares.

DOLLAR HIGHER IN EUROPE

By Associated Press

The dollar was higher against most foreign currencies today, as weakness in the pound was carried over into other exchanges.

The dollar gained 1¾ cents in London, closing at 5.00 1/8 the pound, while sterling dipped 1¼ cents in New York to $5.01.

The price of gold in London rose sharply, advancing 6 pence to 138 shillings 1½ pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.89), it was announced at about $1,641,650 were sold.

In Paris, also, the dollar was higher, moving up a centime to the equivalent of 6.60½ cents to the franc. The French franc declined .03½ cent in New York to 6.60½ cents.

Canadian dollars continued to show unusual strength, rising to a new high for the year in New York at a premium of 1 1-16 cents over par. The rise was attributed to Canadian banking circles largely to the delay of Montreal's borrowing of $8,000,000 in London. It was believed the exchange would recede after the transaction was cleared up.

Central Has Gain in Carloadings

New York, June 13 (AP)—New York Central Railroad Co.'s freight loadings last week totaled 97,856 cars compared with 90,944 in the previous week, which included Memorial Day, and 92,142 in the like week last year.

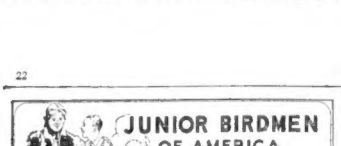
NEW MYSTERY THRILLER SOLUTION IS BROADCAST FEATURE



By LIEUTENANT L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Service, Junior Birdmen! That's the keynote of today's announcement from Lawrence Shaw, national director, that the Junior Birdmen Model Plane Institute has been inaugurated and provides the first constructive service ever offered to model plane makers by any organization.

With complete laboratory testing equipment and actual work shop, where hundreds of model kits will be closely inspected and actually constructed, the Junior Birdmen Model Plane Institute will soon be able to recommend approved model plane kits of all manufacture and by-products for model aircraft work. These recommendations will be available to the thousands of model builders throughout the United States. With hundreds of types of model plane kits on the shelves of dealers' stores, and many more advertised in magazines, model builders are often confused as to the best kit for their purpose.

Hazel Davis

The Junior Birdmen will not endeavor to dictate what planes you should construct, but we are interested in knowing that when you purchase a kit it contains the finest grade of materials, plans and directions that are easy to read and follow, and that when constructed, in accordance with the directions, the craft will perform satisfactorily.

All manufacturers of model plane supplies have been sent an announcement of this new service and invited to submit their models, for test, to the Junior Birdmen Institute Laboratory in New York, which is under the supervision of Irwin Polk, well known for his model plane activity in this country for the last ten years.

Official Seal of Approval Goes on

Upon receipt of application for a Junior Birdmen seal of approval for any kit, a rigid laboratory test will be made of the contents including the balsa, tissue, cement, rubber, dope, wire and other materials.

An actual model will be constructed in the work shop from the plans and directions included with the kit, just as it will be built by your Junior Birdmen members at home. Upon completion, the model will be test-flown for performance.

If the contents and flight meet with the standards set forth by the institute, the manufacturer of the model will be permitted to display on the kit, and in his advertisements and literature, the official seal of approval shown in this column.

Members purchasing kits of any manufacture, bearing the Junior Birdmen Institute seal of approval, can rest assured that they are getting the finest product.

Laboratory tests on several manufacturers' models have already been started and within a short while these kits, if approved, will bear the new official seal of the institute.

This protective service should send you model builders into real "wing-overs" for you will soon be able to purchase kits at your local stores, bearing the official seal of the organization, and know that the contents are of standard quality and that you will have no trouble in constructing the model from the plans and directions enclosed and, if properly constructed, you will be sure of having a model whose performance is guaranteed by the seal of the institute on the kit-carton.

Non-flying Models and Materials, Too

Non-flying models, and model builder's material, as well as kits, will be awarded the institute seal of approval, along with all other products allied to the art of model building. This, as well, will include books on model airplanes, magazines and other by-products.

The names of all products, receiving the official use of the Junior Birdmen seal of approval, will be published in this column from time to time and will be permanently filed in the Junior Birdmen model plane institute library, which will be open to visitors at all times.

More of the activity of this new Junior Birdmen model plane institute will be published for you from time to time. Watch for the announcements of the first products to be approved and then, when purchasing your kits, be sure you ask only for those which have the Junior Birdmen Seal of Approval.

Notes on Junior Birdmen Activities

We neglected to explain, Junior Birdmen, that "Johnny" Polando did not fly at the air festival because he was unexpectedly called to New York on urgent business. Joshua Crane, who threw that bright-red Waco around in the air, filled in for Polando, and you'll agree that he did a first-class job of it.

Our next general activity will be the first official New England Model Plane Derby on Saturday, July 7. This will be held in the Playstead of Franklin Park, the place where the X-9 members held their Easter Egg Hunt. Don't miss this contest. You have ample time now in which to build your craft from the beginners' course of instruction appearing in this column. We want this derby to be just as successful as the New England Air Festival. Send in now for your free book of rules and an entry blank. Wonderful prizes will be given to the derby winners.

Have you written your letter of 200 words on "What I learned at the Junior Birdmen Field Day?" The entire are beginning to pour in with Junior Birdmen striving to win the two handsome bronze trophies donated by the New England Aircraft School. One loving cup will go to the winner of Group "A" and one to the winner of Group "B".

The Junior Birdwoman whose picture is printed today is Hazel Davie, 14, of 518 Putnam avenue, Cambridge.

Nearly 100 new members joined the Junior Birdmen on Saturday afternoon during the air festival. Welcome, new members. Call at our office at 100 Summer st. We'd like to meet you. Until then—

Look for This Seal

Many model plane kits and materials will soon bear this official Junior Birdmen Model Plane Institute seal of approval. Within a short time the first products bearing this official seal will be announced.

Crime Clues Clear Ghost Story

By N. F. T.

Haunted houses and stories about them have mostly (or nearly always) been found by me to be yarns built around old, dilapidated places, usually a long time vacant. At least such is my reading experience in that weird type of tale. Somehow a new house doesn't seem to be just the right setting for spooky yarns. Hence the current "Crime Clues" series has had a theme called "The Ghost Upon the Floor" featured lately. It all winds up between 8 and 8:30 tonight (WBZ) with a comparatively new dwelling for the fictional locale and inevitable mystery unraveling.

This dramatization is designed from the Stewart Sterling novel of the same name. While far fetched when characters are all sane, cemetery manuscripts, I have found it good listening. Also I have likewise kept more than the usual number of lights going. This evening the thrills are slated to tumble out of the loudspeaker thick and fast as "Spencer Dean" solves the baffling "lady with the lamp" and "Jonny" mysterious. Frankly it is one of the first programs of the kind when I have had a preview and know how things would conclude. Scotland yard offers welcome!

MOUTH ORGAN MAESTROS

Harmonica playing rivalry worked into a contest staging (WAAB) over 10,000 miles of space, affords the "Byrd Broadcast" highlight tonight from 10 until 10:30 P. M. It seems the U. S. Navy champ will match his mouth organing against the crack Army champ. It with the Byrd crowd off in Little America. First class Seaman William Hasley of the U. S. S. Maryland holds the title, while Alphonse Carbone, Byrd expedition cook, is the champ due to defend honrs for the Antarctica crew.

Lightning struck the Squantum transmitter serving WNAC last night and there wasn't a sound out of it for 35 minutes or more around supper time.

Fred Allen has a cabaret scene ready and waiting when his "Hour of Smiles" hits the four winds (WEEI) tonight from 8 to 9 o'clock. No "easies" will sing, he tells liststs. If three girls happen to harmonize together, Fred says that doesn't mean they should be considered sisters.

LOCAL LATHER

Two or three of the Hub sound sanctum performers desire to know who started the "local lather" is spread in and out of the colyum hors recently. The answer is that the commercial activity is appearing abroad in Boston broadcasting circles to warrant any appreciable concern over it. Add to this the fact that Ruth Chilton is a featured "Sailor Riley" program performer (WEEI) at 6:45 and then again steps into the spotlight at 7:30 when the same station announces she is "Alice Remsen" in that would seem to rate marked mention. Also the very human interest angle on your "Riley" is not just unearthed. It seems last week the "Inside Looking Out" prison drama was broadcast from Concord. One was a more or less well meaning offender who could not secure consideration by the Parole Board. The other was rather cleverly deceitful and obtained his parole, being released only to continue a life of crime and finish in the electric chair. This story was based on truth as it built into the prison air adaption by radio (WBZ) and the "fictional" fellow who was not favored is still in prison. Yesterday a lawyer began preparing a presentation for the parole board, inspired on a result of the radio story heard by his client, the "forgotten" penitentiary inmate. In fact "No. 7373" was approached for further details. The alert attorney is Harry Ruskin of State street. Such incidents arouse interest aplenty in radio program possibilities and also furnish items worthy of publication. Not many local "mike" efforts do, 'tis sad to report.

MORGAN'S SPEEDS UP SALES PROGRAM

Increased employment in practically every department and a great new advertising campaign, is the "back to prosperity" program upon which the Morgan Furniture Company, operating a $1,500,000 furniture chain store, has enthusiastically embarked.

Sidney B. Rogal, vice-president and treasurer of the company, speaking for the absent head of the city of President Abner Cohan, declared that "Morgan's is initiating a mammoth expansion program because of its implicit confidence in the not far distant financial come-back of New England."

Founded 17 years ago, Morgan's Furniture Company originally occupied the modest first-floor space at 757 Washington st.

Building up, it gradually expanded until it was able to take over the entire three floors. Still later, the firm bought out the 75-year-old firm, Haines Furniture Company, taking over the building it continues to occupy at 730 Washington st.

One of the largest retail furniture warehouses in New England, the firm boasts 40 acres of floor in the building, with the 80,000 square feet in the addition giving a total of 200,000 square feet.

The next forward step in the company's advancement was the erection of an attractive building at Kneeland and Washington streets, where the offices and showrooms were located.

Subsequently, branches were established at 326 Moody street, Waltham, and at 257 Elm street, Somerville.

A fourth store in the impressive Morgan chain opened its doors to the public last September at 130-140 Pleasant street, Malden, in response to President Roosevelt's appeal to merchants to increase payrolls. Arthur Toga has been put in charge of this store.

Less than two months later, Morgan's Furniture Stores announced the opening of its fifth store at 1454-1456 Hancock street, Quincy, the center of the leading shopping district south of Boston. Hugh F. Williams is manager of the new store.

At the time these stores were opened, George Huber, manager of the Boston store at 730 Washington street, and general manager of the chain, said:

"The new link in the Morgan chain represents our determination to co-operate 100 per cent with the NRA. Already we have increased our employment lists by 25 per cent and our payroll in the same proportion. This has, of course, meant greater activity in our warehouses and stores in Boston, Waltham and Somerville.

ABNER COHAN

SIDNEY B. ROGAL

Abner Cohan and Sidney B. Rogal, president and vice-president, respectively of the Morgan Furniture Company, have started the company on an advertising program that will increase employment in every department of the store.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1934

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Big Cost of Counties in Need of Curbing

IN seventeen years, the cost of county government in Massachusetts increased 219 per cent.

In 1913, it was $5,142,652. By 1930, it became $16,426,368. In the meantime, the population increase in the State was only 26.2 per cent.

If the intelligent business man saw his expenses mounting by leaps and bounds, apparently out of all reason, what would be his first action in the matter? He would survey his business, of course. This is what ought to be done by the Legislature in the matter of extravagant, abnormal county government cost increases.

We ought to look over our counties thoughtfully and determine: (1) where unwarranted expenses can be reduced; (2) whether the county governments should be consolidated; (3) whether they should be abolished entirely and the functions they perform be taken over by the State and the cities and towns.

THE penal system of the counties is one of their elaborate expenses. Every county has one or more jails. Every county except Dukes has a House of Correction. The control of these penal institutions is lodged in the Sheriff. Their budget, however, is in control of the County Commissioners.

Important authority over the prisoners is vested in the State Commissioner of Correction. There never has been a centralized purchasing agency for scientific purchase of supplies for these institutions. Their diverse management makes them a hodgepodge.

This is only one of many instances, but it is an impressive example of how the counties could be consolidated or eliminated in the interest of efficiency and economy for the taxpayers.

If the Legislature would only resist the political influence of the county rings and order a comprehensive examination of conditions, it would lift a load off the taxpayers' pocketbooks.

Protects Industry

CONGRESSMAN McCORMACK has persuaded the national House of Representatives to pass a bill which would prevent the sale of the national government of confiscated watches in competition with the legitimate product of American watch manufacturers.

You have only to recall the great watch manufactory in Waltham to realize that this legislation is designed to protect a Massachusetts industry.

In one sale at New York the government disposed of 39,200 watches or watch movements, valued at $135,000.

The purchaser got them for $66,000 and subsequently sold them at a profit but at considerably less than the American retail prices for similarly-made American watches. There you find the government itself in competition with industry, breaking down the American standard of wages.

There is a more important point, however, which readily comes to mind from this incident. The 39,200 watches which the government happened to discover are only a fragment of the vast quantity illegally smuggled into this country from year to year.

We spent hundreds of millions of dollars, in prohibition times, to equip fleets and to man the borders against the smuggling of liquors, which did not compete with any industry at that time in this country.

We would do better to be just as alert and to be just as generous to prevent the illegal inroads upon legitimate industry.

The country is in the position, first, of adopting inadequate measures to prevent the smuggling of goods that would illegitimately compete with American products and, secondly, when it seizes the goods of putting them into direct competition with the same American products.

The way for the country to become consistent is to build up its anti-smuggling forces.

To Save Our Beaches

The American Shore and Beach Preservation Association will hold its convention at Hampton Beach next Monday and Tuesday.

The purpose of this organization is to pit man's skill against the destruction of the beaches and water-front by the elements of Nature.

We have learned a great deal about soil erosion in this generation. We have not learned yet, however, the necessity of a unified, collective campaign.

Our individual States, individual communities and individual citizens erect expensive bulwarks, but they are destroyed at great financial loss because they are built without proper consideration of erosion, of the havoc of the winds and tides, of littoral and offshore currents and other important factors.

Along our waterfront from Newburyport to Provincetown, you may see the changed and altered shoreline. However slight it may be, it involves a property loss that should not have been permitted.

Great wealth has been lost to the property owners on the south shore of The Cape because of the inadequacy of the measures adopted by them to prevent the washing away of the sandy headlands.

You see photographs of buildings wrecked and homes destroyed by the spring floods in the rivers and you wonder that man has not employed his talents better to overcome these enormous losses and the suffering entailed.

If you are in the vicinity of Hampton Beach on Monday or Tuesday, you could spend a profitable hour with these experts.

It would be worth a special trip, especially if you are immediately interested in preserving your own property or in blockading the losses sustained by your neighbors.

Eleonora Sears 'Fit'

Miss Eleonora Sears, the Boston society sportswoman, walked the forty-four miles from Providence to Boston without stop for rest. Being an observant person, you have no doubt noticed the sensible attire Miss Sears wore for this event.

A wide skirt, so as not to obstruct the free movement of the limbs; heavy-soled shoes, so as to resist better the "pound" of the hard pavement; thick, woolen stockings, to absorb the perspiration and dust that otherwise would callous the feet.

When you are going to do anything, plan for it, whether it be an excursion to the South Pole with Admiral Byrd or a "constitutional" of forty-four miles with Eleonora Sears.

Miss Sears, a very sensible and natural person, says simply that this annual trek of hers is not a "stunt." It is a test of her physical fitness. She enjoys it.

But we know that she derived more genuine pleasure in finding work for unemployed men and women in conjunction with the Boston Evening American's "Give a Job" campaign in the early days of the depression.

Listen, World! -:- -:- By Elsie Robinson

SHOULD AMERICAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS DISCUSS AMERICA?

There's a great to-do going on in the schools of Southern California. Someone has discovered that high school students, instead of studying the mere "dry bones" of history, are encouraged to discuss American institutions and compare them with the institutions of other countries.

For example, there's this matter of Planned Production. Planned Production has been getting plenty of publicity outside the schools, ever since the depression began and we realized that millions were starving in the midst of abundance. Promptly writers began to make books, editors began to fill columns with discussions of whether we should or shouldn't control our boundless output of oats, coats, pigs, peaches, oil, coal—or what have you?

Elsie Robinson

And did or didn't the state or federal government have the right to tell the farmer, miner when and which?

Copious data also began to be broadcast showing the dire results of what happened when there wasn't any control. There —not to be ducked or contradicted—were American stories of gallons of surplus milk and crates of fruit spilled into our oceans and rivers; of surplus corn burned as fuel in the Middle West—while tenement dwellers starved.

Wasn't something wrong, all America asked, when things like this could happen? Wasn't there criminal stupidity or greed somewhere? There certainly was, said frugal foreign nations, who had looked on our abundance with envious eyes. No sensible person, much less a great nation, would waste its wealth like that! It was a ghastly lesson.

Such a ghastly lesson that Soviet Russia, trying to save its future generations from a similar catastrophe, decided to tell its children what it was all about. So presently, in the grade schools of Russia, there appeared a small volume called "The Russian Primer."

The Russian Primer was intended for the use of children of 12 to 14 years of age. In simple language it tells the story of Unplanned Production, and what happened when a people permitted it. The quotations are taken from our own American writers, the incidents from our American scene.

There was no jeering criticism of America, no communistic propaganda. It was a plain story, for young minds, of bad housekeeping.

Within a few weeks the grownup minds of America were gravely studying that little Russian school book. No one—worse luck!—could deny a thing that was said, or find fault with the manner of its telling. It was all only too true.

But what could America do about it? What was the answer to our stupid, wasteful, cruel career of Unplanned Production?

We're still looking for an answer . . . beginning to make serious efforts toward finding it. And the struggle to find it is making great national history. So, recently, some enthusiastic and alert young teachers in various parts of Southern California said to each other:

"Shouldn't the youngsters know about what's going on, just as they know the World War, or any other phase in modern history? Shouldn't they take their part in all this fine discussion and investigation; be urged to think about it all for themselves, make opinions for themselves?"

'An exciting idea! Would the youngsters themselves take to it? They would! They did! Forthwith, America—her pro's and con's—became Red Hot News in every current events class—as exciting even as Bill's batting score or Sally's swimming record.

And then someone introduced the Russian Primer!

Why not? There was the simplest statement available of the whole subject . . . based on findings by our own American writers. Surely no one could object to that.

BUT SOMEONE SURELY DID!

Immediately, from every conservative American home, from P. T. A. meetings, religious organizations, patriotic societies, rose the horrified howl of, "They're teaching Communism in our public schools!

"They're teaching our children to sneer at America . . . training them to betray America . . . turning them into radicals, anarchists!"

Should they be? Have or haven't they done a "vicious and destructive thing?" Was it "traitorous" to introduce the Russian primer into the courses?

Should or shouldn't students of high school age be allowed to learn the truth about their country . . . be allowed to discuss and possibly criticize its programs and institutions . . . be allowed to compare its methods with those of other nations?

What do YOU think?

Fears Facing The Truth -:- -:- By Winifred Black

I can't bear to see her looking downcast, she's usually so delighted with herself and her family, her grandmother and her aunts and the old man who used to hold her horse for her, when she went for a ride in the gay days of old.

And there are the nurse who curled her hair and the cook in the kitchen who did such marvelous things with hominy and chickens and the old coachman who drove with such dexterity and grace, and how he loved to draw up to the church on Sunday morning with a glorious flourish of his whip.

Winifred Black

And the dogs she had when she was a girl, a whole kennel full of them. Imported, too, if you please, straight from the royal kennels at Windsor, and the lovely parties her mother gave for her and the sweet dresses of flowered muslin she wore, and the great closets full of linens and laces, and the fine embroideries and delicate fabrics that were always to be found in the great trunks up in the great attic.

I love to hear Hoighty Toity tell about these things, it makes me feel so rich and prosperous and popular and proud and carefree.

No worrying over bills, no anxious hours trying to make the bank account come right—everything free and fair and glorious and gorgeous.

Dear Hoighty Toity, what a darling she is, to be sure.

As good as gold, as kind as the summer sunshine, as generous as old Mother Earth herself.

It was quite a shock to me when I went down to the part of the country where Hoighty Toity lived when she was a little girl.

The old house was still standing—I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw it.

There was not a thing magnificent about it. It was just rather a plain old house with not so very many rooms and where, oh where, were the great stables she had told of so often.

Just a plain old-fashioned barn with a hay mow and one or two stalls for horses.

And the neighbors said that Hoighty Toity's family was never in the least rich or powerful or even very grand.

They were just plain, honest, kindly folk with rather an easy going way of living, and the marvelous cook worked from daylight till dark for something like three a week and her board. And the coachman's coat was often almost ragged and as for the nurse who took care of little Hoighty Toity she was just the little half-grown daughter of a poor relation and not such a very good nurse at that.

No, I don't think Hoighty Toity meant to be deceitful about these things, nor just saw them that way, that's all.

She sees everything of her own through a mist of streaming golden sunshine, and her eyes are a little dazzled—that's all.

Dear Hoighty Toity, I would'nt be cross with her for the world and I do hope she will get back into the sunshine again—somebody told her the plain truth about her rather good for nothing, stupid son the other day and it was a terrific shock.

I do hope she gets over it, and thinks again that he is the handsomest, most brilliant, most promising young man in all the world.

For I really do believe that if Hoighty Toity had to face the truth, she would just lie down and die.

And that would be entirely too bad for one is good and kind and there's something sweet and childlike about her that helps to sweeten the world wherever she is.

A POSTAL CARD COMES

Shepard, of Alabama, your postal card came today—
"Fishing conditions are excellent!" was all that you had to say,
And you typed that line and you signed your name and sent it on to me,
But it kept me dreaming the morning through when at work I'd planned to be.

It cost you scarcely a minute's time and only a copper cent,
But I doubt that you thought as you sent it out just what such a message meant.
I'd a mind all clear for the tasks ahead; I was eager my work to do
When out of the morning mail there popped that postal card from you.

Here I have dreamed all the morning long and the afternoon grows late,
And nothing I've done but think of you and a rod and a line and bait.
My ears have rung with a singing reel and my eyes have strayed afar
From my dreary desk to some lovely stream where the weeping willows are.

But Shepard, of Alabama, I wonder if you don't know

Human Side of the News; Hapsburgs to Return?

By Edwin C. Hill

With deep-seated and probably incurable enmity between the Nazis and the Socialists, a rift and a hatred which carries with it always the menace of riot and bloodshed, if not of actual civil war, perhaps a restoration of the old monarchy might be the way out.

Prince Otto of Hapsburg, heir of the ancient throne, comes to his twenty-first birthday with considerable expectancies. Tirelessly working in his interest is his extraordinary mother, the Ex-Empress Zita, Italian born. Zita will go down in history as one of the most striking figures of these times.

She was born a Bourbon-Parma. Her grandfather, the Duke of Parma, was murdered. Her father was driven out when he was eleven. She grew up in the hard school of poverty and adversity, soared to dazzling heights for a brief time as Austrian Empress, and was hurled suddenly and violently into poverty and adversity.

But there is a flame in the heart of this little frail woman, with deep, dark rings cut under her eyes, which will not let her rest.

Twice she drove her exiled Emperor husband into attempts to get back his lost Hungarian throne. She faced the danger with him. She shared his exile until he died. Then she began training her eldest son. To her, he is ever and always a king.

Otto was born with many gifts—a quick, receptive mind and good looks, which have made him the handsomest, most romantic-appearing prince in the world. But he found also, a cup of bitterness and learn to drink. He was born at Wartholz Castle, Nov. 20, 1912.

His father was then a simple major in the Austrian army—only one of a shoal of archdukes. The pistols which killed Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, in in Sarajevo June 28, 1914, thereby bringing about the World War, suddenly shot the baby Otto's father into the position of heir apparent.

When Otto was four the old man's death made Archduke Karl the new Emperor, and Otto became crown prince. From the palace windows his baby eyes saw the strong young men, with flowed bedecked hats, going away to the war singing. From those same windows he saw some of them coming back, shell-blasted and silent.

In 1918, at the age of six, he saw Vienna in the throes of revolution. A short sojourn in a castle and then escape to Switzerland. The family moved from place to place. Then news that his father and mother had been captured when trying to get back the Hungarian throne, and were being taken away as prisoners to an unknown destination.

Then Madeira, where his father was an exile and ill. March 27, 1922, in the night, the ten-year-old boy was summoned to see his father receive the last sacraments. Four days later the child witnessed his parent's death agony.

Once more the stricken family's dreary trek began. A castle at Bilboa, another at San Sebastian, a small house at Lequeitio, school days at the Benedictine grammar school, at Clairvaux, in Luxemburg. Then a move to Ham castle, at Steenockerseel, in Belgium, while he attended the University of Louvain and took the extended course in languages, literature, history and politics that a future king needs. He graduated with honors. Now he is ready for anything—even a throne.

A fascinating capital, Vienna, even in its decline, murdered by the Great War. Once the most brilliant center of Europe, gayer even than Paris, it knows the throb of tragedy. Over it hangs the curse of the Hapsburgs. Within it is one of the most affecting sepulchres in the world.

In an obscure side street is the old, old Church of the Capucines. And I think of the afternoon, not long ago, when I happened into that little street and rang the bell of the church. There came to the door a young monk of the Capucine Order—brown-bearded, brown-eyed, rosy-cheeked, with his brown habit girdled by the coarse rope which symbolizes the poverty of the order.

He took me below, deep down into the crypt of the church, far down where sunlight hadn't penetrated for three hundred years. And there he showed me, in that dusty and ancient cellar, all that remains on this earth of the power and glory of the great Hapsburg family. This great ruined family, so haughty in life, the family whose inextinguishable vanity was to be humble in death.

He showed me the lovely white marble urn in which Francis Joseph lies with the murdered Empress Elizabeth, and their unhappy son, Rudolph, who killed himself and his sweetheart. He showed me the great bronze catafalque of the Empress Maria Theresa. And he came finally to a jumble of coffins, one piled carelessly upon another. One of these was the coffin of L'Aiglon, the unhappiest child that ever lived.

And I thought of that day when all Paris hushed to the crashing of the guns of the Invalides—guns telling the people that a child had been born to the Empress Eugenie and the Emperor Napoleon III, and of the day that shook the city when 100 guns told of the birth of a son. A babe with the world for its footstool.

Unemployment Task Vital One Facing Roosevelt

By James T. Williams, Jr.

How best to meet the challenge of widespread unemployment among young Americans is one of the vital problems to which President Roosevelt is giving serious study. Before starting on his cruise to the Pacific, he will probably announce some of the things he intends to do about it.

The plight of jobless youth was recently considered at a special conference in the Federal City, called with the approval of the President, and held under the auspices of the federal office of education.

IDLENESS FOR THOUSANDS

As defined by the United States commissioner of education, Dr. George F. Zook, the chief purpose of this conference was "to find ways and means of helping to bridge the distressing gap between school and unemployment."

"His office finds that high schools and colleges by the end of this month will have graduated their fifth class of seniors since the beginning of the economic depression in 1929. For the most part those five classes of high school students have entered a world 'where there is little or no demand for what services they have to offer.'"

In this country today, it is estimated, approximately four million young Americans between the ages of 14 and 18 are not enrolled in high schools. Some of these are excluded from industry by code limitations. Consequently they are doomed to idleness until they can return to school or become old enough to be eligible for employment under existing codes.

Of those in the college-age level, it is estimated that there are seven out of college for every one in college.

And not less than three million of the age group of 18 to 24 are out of school and out of work.

"This situation is bad for boys and girls. It is bad for our nation," declares Commissioner Zook. And the report of the conference over which he presided comes to the same conclusion in these words:

"A hopeless, despairing generation of youth is a threat to sound national development. The welfare of youth deserves a place in all plans of social reconstruction.

"The period of self-help of youth's responsibility should dominate all programs instituted for youth.

"Adjustment should be effected with organized economics and social groups as they exist today to permit youths such share in the work of the world as is genuinely necessary for their education and initiation at appropriate ages to full citizenship and social membership."

THREE WAY PLAN URGED

If President Roosevelt adopts the recommendations unanimously adopted at this federal conference on the problems of American youth, he will soon appoint a continuing commission on youth problems as an auxiliary of the federal office of education.

The commission will then have the services of a specialist in the federal office of education and one-third of its membership will be made up of young Americans under 30 years of age.

Among the duties of this proposed commission will be the following:

To recommend plans for national, state and local organizations to assure effective operation of a program in the field of youth.

To foster interest in the problems of youth by all government agencies.

Under federal leadership it will endeavor to enlist the cooperation of state and local agencies to find suitable employment for youth, and to improve and improve existing facilities for education and guidance of youth and to encourage a better use of leisure time among young Americans than they now enjoy.

CONGRESS LOOKS BOOKS

President Roosevelt showed his concern for the problems of jobless youth when he established the Civilian Conservation Corps camps, and again when he continued these camps for another year, but Congress today has manifested little interest in this vital question.

Congress has practically closed the door to the problems of jobless youth, badly needed to bring the army and navy to peace time strength, and has refused to authorize any adequate increase in the personnel of either service.

Congress has also junked the urgent recommendations of Woodrow Wilson and succeeding Presidents that citizens should be given an opportunity to train with the colors for national citizenship in citizens' military training camps. Instead of providing camps for all young Americans who apply and can qualify for this training, Congress, when American youth most needs this training, has cut the camps this year to fourteen thousand, when one hundred thousand would have welcomed the opportunity to attend.
